LEHMANN COMING BACK.

Methods of the English Coach Still Followed by the Harvard Crew.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 18.—Rudolph C. Lehmann, the coach of the Harvard varsity boat crew, has definitely decided to leave England on White Star line steamer Teutonic, which will arrive in New York November 3. He will proceed immediately to Boston. Mr. Lehmann will be accompanied by Henry Wilkie, the lead for coxswain. J. C. Goldie, No 7 of the Leander crew and the probable coach of the Cambridge, Eng. eight this year, is expected to come over two weeks later.

The statement that Harvard is not following the style of rowing taught by Mr. Lehmann, and that the rigging of the boat has been changed from his methods, was denied here this morning. Mr. Lehmann's teachings are being followed as closely as possible.

SALISBURY TO STAY.

Denies That He Is to Retire from the Premiership.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The Marquis of Salisbury telegraphed to the Associated Press from Hatfield House, Hertford, saying there is absolutely no truth in the story published by the Daily Chronicle of this city, today, saying the premier is anxious to retire, on account of ill health and anxiety respecting the health of the Marchioness of Salisbury, and that an early reconstruction of the cabinet, in consequence, is probable.

Harvard Base Ball Team to Go South Next Spring.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 18.—The management of the Harvard base ball club has decided to make a Southern trip during the next spring vacation, in order to give the players experience and training at a time when the weather in this section probably outdoor training. The Harvard team has never before seriously considered such a trip. Games will probably be arranged with Georgetown, the University of Virginia, the University of North Carolina and other Southern colleges.

SICK WHEN APPOINTED.

Death of Newton Bates, the New Surgeon General of the Navy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Surgeon-General Newton Bates of the navy, the President's family physician, died at the Shoreham Hotel at 9:30 o'clock this morning, from a renal trouble. He was appointed surgeon general about two weeks ago to succeed Surgeon-General Tryon, and was ordered on account of the illness which finally resulted in his death to take the oath of office in bed. His illness at the time was not regarded as serious, but developed alarming symptoms within the last day or two, and then grew steadily worse. He entered the navy for New York state in June, 1861, and prior to his appointment as surgeon-general was a medical director with the relative rank of captain, and was on duty at the naval academy at Annapolis.

PERFECTING ARRANGEMENTS.

Making Ready for the World's W. C. T. U. Convention.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 18.—The headquarters of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is at present the scene of great activity. It is the centre from which radiate many lines of effort put forth in preparation for the gathering of the white ribboners. The hospitality committee has almost completed arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates, and the best homes in Toronto will be open to the visitors. Miss Lottie Wiggins, chairman of the convention committee, is getting out a handbook containing information regarding the program, location of the various committees, halls, possibilities on street car routes. Miss Elizabeth Greenwood of New York is to preach the convention sermon in Massey Hall, as the substitute for Lady Henry Somerset, and a large audience is expected to assemble on the afternoon of the twenty fourth. Altogether the convention promises to be the best in point of attendance, spirit and visitors.

MADE A GOOD HAUL.

Robbers Capture Valuable Packages, Ready for Shipment.

OROVILLE, Cal., Oct. 18.—The details of the express robbery at Quincy, received here, are meagre. The messenger whose duty it is to guard valuable shipments goes up there twice a month, on the fifteenth and on the last day of the month. The robber was probably aware of when these trips are made, and the arrival of the messenger was sufficient to indicate that the treasure was to be sent out of town.

The stage for Reno leaves Quincy at 4 o'clock in the morning, and the driver, James Dempsey, has a key to the express office. He driver usually gets the express box himself, as the agent does not get up to deliver it to him. The express box is put up at night by the agent, taken upstairs and placed in the bank, and the box left in the store and office unguarded. The driver and express messenger each have a key to the front door.

Saturday morning, when they opened the door and looked for the box, it was not there. They then hurriedly searched the room and found that the transom over the back door had been broken open, thereby giving the robber entrance to the building at that point. There was no clue to the identity of the robber. There was $2,000 in gold in the packages, and it is thought there were other valuable packages.

Congregational Council to Sit in the Brown Case.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—The council appointed from members of the Congregational denomination throughout the country to try the difference between Rev. C. O. Brown of the Green Street Church and the Bay conference, from which the preacher was suspended a year ago, will sit in Chicago Tuesday, October 26. The council of eleven is the final court of appeal in the church.

GOING TO ALASKA.

Gunboat Marietta Preparing for Her Voyage North.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—Gunboat Marietta came down from the navy yard today and anchored in the stream close to battleship Oregon. The vessel is preparing to leave for Alaskan waters and her officers expect to get away for the north Thursday. The Marietta has several men whom she will take north to fill out the crew of the Concord, which has been in Behring sea all summer. The Concord will sail for home on the arrival of the Marietta. Shortly after the gunboat dropped her anchor in the stream she was visited by the commander of French cruiser Dugusy Trouin.

THOUSANDS MASSACRED.

Kuang Yang Captured by a Band of Insurgents.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 18.—The city of Kuang Yang, in Hunan province, has been captured and its inhabitants massacred by a band of rebels forming part of an army which is devastating Hunan and Kiang provinces, in southern China. August 27 the bandits scaled the walls of Kuang Yang with the intention of capturing the provincial prison and releasing three of the members there imprisoned. One band came down the prison, setting free several hundred murderers, thieves and imprisoned debtors. Another gang attacked the central part of the city, first murdering the magistrate who had sent three bandits to prison. His entire family, numbering thirty-two, including servants, was killed. The night was spent in slaying and plundering. All mandarins and every civil and military officer in the city were beaten. The number killed and injured exceeded 15,000. The insurgents numbered 15,000 men, half of them armed. Their avowed object is to destroy existing government in southern China. The government is greatly alarmed, but has no adequate means of suppressing the insurrection.

TO GO WEST.

Chicago Athletic Association Football Team's Winter Trip.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—The Chicago Athletic Association football team will make a Western trip this winter, unless the board of directors of the club interferes. Manager William Hale Thompson and Captain Philip Draper are not content with the Eastern invasion which will begin next week, and which includes games with the strong Eastern athletic clubs as well as with Yale. They desire that the Chicago Athletic Association shall be known from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The determination to take a Western trip was caused by the offer of the Butte Athletic Club to guarantee $1,000 for a game on the way to the Pacific coast, and an additional $500 for a second game, if the team proposes to return the same way. As only $3,000 is needed to make the trip the financial part is considered assured. Games will probably be arranged with the Denver Athletic Club, Leland Stanford University, University of California and the strong team at Los Angeles. The story will be given after the Thanksgiving day game. The men will be allowed to break training for a week or ten days, to keep them in good fighting shape.

BANK OF ENGLAND RESERVES.

At No Time In Danger of Being Opened to Silver.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The afternoon newspapers today echo the opinions of the morning newspapers, in congratulating the government upon "finally disposing of the bimetallic scare," and expressing regret that it should "ever even have seemed to receive support in high quarters."

Mr. Hugh C. Smith, governor of the Bank of England, said today to a representative of the Associated Press: "The bank is a private corporation, without any government control, and is not responsible to the government except in the terms of its charter. The government cannot issue any orders relative to the bank's reserves. At the same time the government is the bank's best customer, and the court of governors being composed of law-abiding citizens, whenever the government makes a request we do our best to comply. The government must be presumed to know what is best for the country.

"The press has been filled with misstatements. The government wrote asking if the bank was willing to renew its offer, made at the Paris monetary conference in 1881, regarding its reserve. I replied in the same tenor as the memorandum which the bank sent to that conference, though more guardedly. This is all that happened. The statement that the bank had been conferring with the American commissioners is pure rubbish. Except what I have read in the papers, I have never heard of these gentlemen."

ARRESTS EXPECTED.

Sensational Developments Regarding the Versailles Lynching.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 18.—Developments of a sensational character are expected this week in the investigation into the Versailles lynching, and it is said that the governor is so well informed regarding the participants in the tragedy in which five men were cruelly beaten and afterward hanged, that he now has no hesitancy about proceeding against them. Arrests are expected in a few days.

The leaders of the mob have been known ever since the lynching occurred, but recent investigation shows that agents of the state have secured the names of several others, and the names also of many who were privy to the affair, if not actual participants in it. The attorney general is in constant communication with the agents in Ripley county, and the evidence has been carefully gone over and is regarded as certain to result in convictions. Whether the governor will demand that a new grand jury be impanelled, and place the evidence before it, or proceed by arrest and preliminary trial before a peace justice, has not been decided.

TAMMANY ALONE CONFIDENT.

All the Other Parties Hesitate to Estimate Pluralities.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Recent political events of importance are considered Hearst-ots interests, declaring that national issues are involved in the municipal campaign and that Tracy is the logical candidate of the Republicans. Secretary Hay's letter to ex-Mayor Hewitt, in which he denies that he acted in bad faith in supporting Joseph Erhardt for mayor in 1886, Henry George's letter to Mr. Hewitt, in which he takes issue with several statements in the mayor's interview, and Justice Gaynor's decision that the Citizens' Union nominations are legally regular.

Although the election is little more than a fortnight distant, all the parties except Tammany are exceedingly wary of giving out probable pluralities. Tammany is credited with an estimate of 60,000 plurality for Van Wyck, and bases the belief on the registration in Greater New York. The majority of Saturday (the final day) was larger than was anticipated, and the leaders appear to be jubilant at this double portent, though leaders of the other political divisions claim to be satisfied and confident. Justice Van Wyck still adheres to his policy of silence, and refuses all interviewers to his forthcoming letter of acceptance.

SUPPORTED MANY STARS.

Death of John W. Hague, Well Known as an Actor.

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—John W. Hague, the actor, died today at his late residence, 521 East Third street, South Boston, after a lingering illness, of disease of the heart. Mr. Hague was born in Halifax, N. S., but came to Boston when a small boy. September 7, 1865, he first appeared on the professional stage at Selwyn's theatre in this city, as James, in "The Bride's Stratagem." In 1875 he was Edwin Booth's leading support during a tour of the South. He afterwards returned to Boston. His last engagement in Boston was at the Boston Museum with Chauncey Olcott, in "The Irish Artist," playing the part of Father Mahony. He had supported many famous stars, including Mary Anderson, John McCullough and Charlotte Cushman.

WITHIN PRISON WALLS.

Manufacture of Counterfeit Fifty-Cent Pieces by Convicts.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Oct. 18.—Warden E. S. Knight of the Riverside penitentiary has discovered that a number of the convicts confined in the institution have been manufacturing counterfeit fifty-cent pieces. He has unearthed the metal from which the "queer" money was made, the mold in which it was cast, and the names of several convicts who were connected with the matter. But as yet he has been unable to find the man who originated and carried out the scheme.

The counterfeits are magnificent specimens of the coiner's art. The die from which the coins were made is almost perfect, and the milling, which is the government's chief protection of metal money from those who would imitate it, is as nearly perfect as possible for human ingenuity to make, and that such coins could be made within the walls of the penitentiary with the crude implements to be obtained by the prisoners is the startling feature of the case.

The counterfeiters had already secured connection with outside parties, and some of the bad money is now in circulation. Warden Knight has a list of nearly a score of convicts and persons supposed to be connected with the counterfeiting, and when the full story of the crime comes out it is said there will be some sensational developments.

CAUGHT IN NEW YORK.

Seekonk Fugitive from Justice Held for Assault.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Joseph Corbett, twenty-five years of age, came to this city from Seekonk, Mass., in order, as the New York police were informed, to escape arrest. He was not successful. Corbett was arrested yesterday at the home of his brother-in-law, James Aylward, at 370 West Sixteenth street. He was arraigned in the Centre street police court today on the charge of being a fugitive from justice, and was remanded to await the arrival of officers from Massachusetts. The police, with the magnanimous intention of giving information, Corbett with his brother John and another man, unknown, on the night of August 9 assaulted and nearly killed Giragus Azzumanak, a Syrian. The assailants broke into the Syrian's home and shot him.

SECRETARY OF STATE ENJOINED.

United Democracy's Candidate for Judge Called in Question.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 18.—An order granted by Judge D. Cady Herrick was served on Secretary of State Palmer at 12:50 o'clock, restraining him from certifying to county clerks the nomination of any candidate for chief judge of the court of appeals by the United Democracy until the legality of the petition for the same has been determined by the courts. The order is returnable at 3 o'clock this afternoon before Judge Herrick.

Complaint Against the Manhattan Road Dismissed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The complaint of Mariner Hendricks of New York against the Manhattan Railway Company, alleging that its directors had unlawfully paid out funds of the corporation in dividends to stockholders aggregating some $3,000,000 and asking that an investigation be made of the affairs of the company for a period from July 1, 1890, to September 1, 1896, was dismissed in the railroad commission today, on a report of Commissioner Baker, who made a special examination of the company.

DANA DEAD.

End of the Long Career of the Nestor of Journalism.

New York, Oct. 18.—The end of the illness which, several months ago, prostrated the doyen of American journalism, C. A. Dana of The Sun, came very quietly Sunday afternoon at the Dana home in Glen Cove, L. I. There was a faint hope last week that he might pull through, but the sickness took a serious turn Saturday morning and as evening approached the indications of a fatal termination became clear.

The extreme heat of Saturday and Friday had considerable to do with hastening the end. On Friday Mr. Dana showed signs of distress, and everything possible was done to relieve him. He had been weakened by his long illness, and during the summer was several times thought to be on the verge of a fatal collapse, but each time he rallied. He did not improve much with the cooler weather, and the sinking spells became more frequent. On Friday Mr. Dana was able to take only the slightest nourishment, and this condition continued.

CHARLES A. DANA.

The cause of Mr. Dana's death was cirrhosis of the liver. On June 9 he was at his office apparently strong and healthy. The next day he was taken ill, and has not since visited New York.

Although Mr. James Gordon Bennett will probably maintain so long as journalism lasts the fame he won as the founder of a modern American journalism, and although Horace Greeley will stand pre-eminent as the political journalist, and Henry J. Raymond as the politician journalist, it is probable that the traditions of journalism as they shall be told in the future will point to Mr. Dana as the greatest of American journalists.

C. A. Dana was born at Hinsdale, N. H., on Aug. 8, 1819, and when he was 16 years of age he entered Harvard college, immediately giving evidence that he possessed unusual mental gifts. But he was obliged to give up his college course. Whether it was overuse of his eyes by candle light or neglect, a functional disturbance which threatened to become organic compelled him to abandon his books just as he was entering the junior year.

Soon after Mr. Dana thought of a mercantile career, and he went to Buffalo. Books, observation, association with men who knew much about many things, had far more fascination for this lad than did the drudgery of barter or the chink of silver over the counter. He became dreamy and was fascinated with the problems of socialism as they were discussed in his early youth, and he gladly joined that famous but wholly impossible socialistic community called Brook Farm, which was established in what was then the town of Roxbury, Mass.

Here Mr. Dana, with Nathaniel Hawthorne and Margaret Fuller and George Ripley and George William Curtis and others who were of literary fame or promise, did his share of menial work with cheerfulness and held his own in the literary and philosophical discussions which were carried on by these thinkers. Dana was one of the first to realize that the experiment was, if not absurd, at least bound to be a failure. He lived long enough to see all of his associates in that experiment die and every one of them convinced that the scheme was utopian.

As he was very anxious to put himself in touch with the world and to go to the other extreme from that represented by the provincialism of Brook Farm, Mr. Dana went to Europe. He had already learned to read French and to speak it fairly well. The facility with which he acquired languages was marvelous and remained with him long after he had passed threescore and ten.

Soon after reaching Paris he spoke French with fluency, and as he was there at the time of the revolution of 1848 his newspaper instincts were fully developed, and his acquaintance with French enabled him to fully understand the meaning of the exciting scenes of that day. He wrote of them in a series of letters published in the New York Tribune, and his correspondence is even regarded to this day as a model of that department of journalism.

Undoubtedly this work brought Mr. Dana into close relations with The Tribune, for soon after he received an offer from Horace Greeley to become managing editor of that paper.

Mr. Dana's connection with The Tribune gave him an intimate acquaintance with most of the great men of the Republican party, and when, in 1861, owing to disagreement with Horace Greeley respecting the attitude of The Tribune upon the conduct of the war, he retired he was esteemed as one of the influential young men of the party. Edwin M. Stanton, then secretary of war, who knew Mr. Dana well, offered him the post of assistant secretary of war, and he undertook these labors with extraordinary energy. Much of the time he was with General Grant in the west. He was several times under fire, showing great coolness and courage. His executive capacity was far more superior to that shown by many who, as the representatives of the war department, he was engaged in forwarding Grant's gigantic military schemes.

After the war Mr. Dana might have accepted several of the more enticing business offers that the fascinations of journalism caused him to decline every time offers of that sort had to be made. A company was organized to create and publish a great Republican newspaper in Chicago, and Mr. Dana was offered the editorship, and a small interest in it was given to him. At that time, however, Chicago was not the great metropolitan city that it is today, and Mr. Dana met difficulties of various sorts in establishing the paper. He sold out his interest, receiving therefor some $7000, and that was the first time in his life that he found himself possessed of any considerable sum of money. A friend advised him to invest it in a house in New York, which he did, and others of his old time Republican friends, notably Colonel Fred A. Conkling, brother of Roscoe Conkling, subscribed a sum sufficient to buy for Mr. Dana the New York Sun, which was to be published as a low priced Republican newspaper.

Mr. Dana took charge on the 1st of January, 1868, the paper then having about 10,000 circulation, and its conspicuous career began with that issue of the paper. He called about him a competent staff, and in less than two years had in many respects revolutionized journalistic methods. He sought for news where other editors had ignored it, and he developed what Samuel Bowles, himself a great editor, said was the "imaging style of reporting," now in vogue in every first-class newspaper.

Of Mr. Dana it has been said that he probably got more rational enjoyment out of life, more honorable and exquisite delight in learning and in nature and art, than any other man of his time. He was not fond of mediocre, either in inanimate objects or among men. For a mediocre reporter he had small toleration, but was enthusiastic over a brilliant reporter or writer, although rather careful not to let the young man know it.

Mr. Dana was nearly 50 years of age before he began, of his own experience, to know the luxury of wealth. He would not have made a great money maker, since he cared but little for money excepting as it enabled him to gratify his cultivated desires. Sometimes he was thought to be foolish in his expenditures, for if a thing suited him he took it, even though the price was exorbitant. On the other hand, if he was not satisfied he would not buy, no matter how great the reduction in price. He could not dicker. When he went to The Tribune as managing editor his salary was $42 a week, and he was 45 years of age before he had received more than $50 a week. The royalties on his book of household poetry and upon Appleton's cyclopedia brought him a larger income than that, although this money came to him mostly after he became editor of The Sun. In his later years Mr. Dana received a salary of $50,00 a year from The Sun and handsome dividends upon the stock, a majority of which he controlled.

Those who knew Mr. Dana well have always felt that the single limitation of his character was that he could not always control his prejudices. He was as staunch and true as steel to his friends, even though others accused some of them of abusing the friendship, and he was also persistent, vehement and, his enemies used to say, malicious in his antagonisms.

A Feat In Engineering

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—The feat of replacing an iron bridge span 242 feet long, 25 feet wide and 30 feet in depth, with one of the same dimensions of steel, was accomplished in this city in two minutes and 32 seconds. In this space of time nearly 1700 tons of iron and steel were moved a distance of 25 feet, and there was not a slip or hitch in the entire performance. This remarkable feat of engineering was accomplished at what is known as the connecting railroad bridge over the Schuylkill, just above Girard avenue. It is the bridge that bears the tracks of the New York division of the Pennsylvania railroad, the busiest division on the system.

FEW BUILDINGS STAND.

Conflagration Wipes Out a Nova Scotia Hamlet.

Windsor, N. S., Oct. 18.—Historic Windsor, one of the most beautiful towns in the provinces, was devastated by fire Sunday morning. For six hours, beginning shortly before 3, the fire, fanned by a violent gale, raged so fiercely that the local department was absolutely helpless to cope with it, and within half an hour after its discovery the mayor began to call for outside assistance.

Long before noon the town had been almost completely eaten up, the area covered by the flames being almost a mile square, and of the 400 or more buildings occupying this section barely half a dozen scorched structures remain. All is a waste of ruins. The buildings that escaped include the Windsor cotton factory, King's college, the Anglican church, Edgehill school for girls and Dufferin hotel. The latter is the only hotel left standing.

No Nova Scotia town has ever been visited by a conflagration of such dimensions. Of the 3500 people inhabiting the place, there are very few who have homes of their own today. Over 1000 have been taken in by the residents of the outskirts and the surrounding country and neighboring towns, while the remainder of the sufferers have gone to Halifax or are sheltered in army tents erected in the vacant plots by a detachment of British troops from the garrison city. The disaster is appalling in its extent and dread consequences, to recover from which will be a matter of many years.

The fire started in a barn in the heart of the business district. The gale carried the flames to other buildings before the firemen had time to get at work, and in a short time the showers of sparks carried in all directions had ignited a score of buildings. The occupants of the dwellings had time enough to hurry out some clothing and to draw some goods into the streets, but there was no place of safety to which anything could be removed quick enough to save it from being destroyed or damaged.

The flames cut a clean gap from the waterfront on the business front to the forests in the rear, bound by Ferry hill on the south side and by Fort Edward on the north. During the past few years many brick structures have been erected, but these were, generally speaking, contiguous to old wooden buildings and all went down together before the furious flames, nothing which was beyond the power of man.

The origin of the fire is one of mystery. A lightning storm passed over the town before the flames broke out, and some think the bolt which they started may have been struck by a flash from the clouds; but many strongly suspect that the conflagration originated through the carelessness or worse of some of our more drunken toughs.

When morning broke the sight of Windsor was a scene of desolation, with hundreds of frantic, thinly clad and destitute men and women and children rushing back and forth through the smoking streets. Fortunately no lives were lost, although the streets were perilous with flying bricks and slate which the fierce hurricane drove like thunderbolts from the roofs. In the hurry and excitement horses and cattle in the stables were forgotten, and many perished in the flames or suffocated from smoke. Others were turned adrift, and last night they roamed the streets almost mad with cold and fright. Relief measures were started in Halifax at an early hour, and in the afternoon a trainload of provisions, tents, blankets, etc., arrived from the provincial capital. Aboard the train were General Montgomery Moore, Governor Daly, Mayor Stephen and 150 men of the royal Berkshire regiment and royal engineers, who were brought to attend to the erection of the tents and aid in the relief work.

The total loss is estimated roughly at $4,000,000. While a number of the heaviest losers are partially insured, and some of them pretty well covered, the total insurance is calculated to be not more than $500,000.

HUNDRED AND FIFTY LOST.

Terrible Consequences of a Disaster at Cuba.

Havana, Oct. 18.—The gunboat Marie Christina, which left this port Saturday for the scene of the wreck of the coasting steamer Triton, which was lost while bound from Havana to Bahia Honda, Banz del Rio, has returned, accompanied by the tug Susie, which went with her. The gunboat had on board 19 and the tug 25 members of the ship's company, of whom 12 are civilians and soldiers. The whereabouts of the others of the company are unknown.

The Triton struck a rock during a heavy rain storm. Her cargo shifted, and 15 minutes later she sank in 120 fathoms of water. A scene of terrible confusion and panic ensued. As soon as the passengers realized the meaning of the crash, they rushed for the boats. The first boat that was lowered capsized immediately and all its occupants were drowned in the whirling waters. The next was struck by an enormous wave and turned over, drowning 20, but the frail craft righted again and sight who had been thrown out regained it.

Some who were good swimmers kept themselves afloat for hours; others floated about for 21 hours on planks. Four soldiers on planks, whom the current carried east of Havana, opposite Morro castle, were saved by a pilot boat.

Those who were rescued tell heart-rending stories of the scenes during the terrible quarter of an hour before the Triton sank. An army capitain, his wife and daughter went down together locked in a last embrace. A mother with twins 15 months old drifted helplessly away on the crest of a great wave. All the other ladies and children were drowned. Just as the Triton was sinking Captain Ricardo, her commander, committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver. It is impossible to give the exact number of those who were lost, but it is estimated that there were no fewer than 150. No passenger list has been found.

On board the Triton were $31,000 in silver to be used for the payment of the Spanish military and naval forces. The Triton, it is stated, was overloaded. She carried a large quantity of ammunition and had on board 93 rifles for the government troops.

Proclamation by Gomez.

Havana, Oct. 18.—In a proclamation widely circulated throughout the country General Gomez says: "We offer to Cuba the splendid spectacle of an unconquerable determination to free her or die. The Spaniards are preparing themselves for the winter campaign, and so are we. We desire to prove that a political change of cabinet in Spain is nothing to us, because we are not fighting for Spanish political parties, but for Cuba against Spain.

"Reforms, autonomy, and all other shameful arrangements concocted by a dozen Cuban poltroons in Havana and the new Spanish cabinet will not influence us in the least. The Spaniards may reward the treachery of a few Cubans with offices and represent that the autonomists represent the Cuban people, but they know that they are lying. This revolution was not made by the autonomists of Havana, but against their will. Therefore, what these allies of Spain may do not does not change the situation in Cuba.

"Cubans, hope and courage! Spain represents injustice and crime. If the whole world conspires to help Spain, the whole world will not win Cuba. The cause of Cuba is the cause of justice and honor, and God is with us!"

New Hampshire Spinners Meet.

Somersworth, N. H., Oct. 18.—The mule spinners of the Dover district, which comprises Dover, Somersworth, Salmon Falls, Newmarket and Exeter, held their semiannual meeting yesterday afternoon. Reports of the secretary and treasurer showed an increase in both the membership and funds of the union, while no labor troubles have occurred, and all the men have been working full time. The following officers were elected for the next six months: President, James Lawler, Somersworth; vice president, John Boyce, Dover; secretary, P. J. Reardon, Somersworth; treasurer, John Sidebottom, Dover; auditors, Felix Waylor, Somersworth; John W. Bailey, Dover.

IN THE FIELD OF SPORT.

Harvard's Football Team Won, but Outplayed at West Point.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 18.—With the election polls all to and fro to Harvard's football team and the cadets on the gridiron Saturday afternoon and nearly twenty-five thousand people witnessed the game, the result was remarkable, as at times Harvard was clearly outplayed by the West Pointers, and only succeeded in gaining distance through good work by Biddle and remarkable running and defensive work. Harvard's play was loose at all times, and fumbles were numerous.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 18.—Saturday the Indians and the Anglo-Saxons met in battle on the gridiron, and the noble red men were trampled in the sod which was once their own by the giants who wear the mole-skins and jersey of old Nassau. The contest was one of the most furiously fought in the annals of the great gridiron sport. The score of 18 to 0 would indicate a comparatively easy victory for the "tigers," but never was a victory for the orange and black attended with more effort and injured men. Unlike the treacherous ancestry, the Indian fought man to man with a fierceness which perhaps he has never before shown on the gridiron. Cheering thousands filled the stands and witnessed the great struggle.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Trinity college and Hamilton college met Saturday. The game resulted in favor of the former by a score of 16 to 0. The halves were of 20 minutes duration. Trinity's eleven averaged about six pounds heavier per man than Hamilton's.

Providence, Oct. 18.—Brown defeated Wesleyan by a score of 24 to 12. The game was close and exciting. Twice the score was tied. In the second half Wesleyan weakened, while Brown showed improvement, and the result was a clean victory for the home team.

Easton, Pa., Oct. 18.—The Lafayette-Cornell game resulted a tie, each eleven scoring four points. The result was no surprise to the friends of the home college team. Her three backs, Worthington, Walbridge and Bray, were on the sick list and in no condition to go on to the field, and before the end of the game the two were compelled to retire. Worthington was disqualified for slugging, but the two others became exhausted in the second half and were carried off the field. The game was a succession of fumbles.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 18.—The Harvard freshmen defeated the Exeter academy eleven, 10 to 4. The game was full of loose playing, especially by the Exeter boys, but was close and exciting at times. On the whole the freshmen proved themselves clearly superior. The feature of the game was the good rushing and tackling of Ellis, an old Andover player.

Albany, Oct. 18.—A most closely contested game was that between Lehigh and Williams. But for an accidental goal from field neither side would have scored. Williams was much heavier than Lehigh, but the latter played a quicker and smoother game. Holdsman kicked a goal from field four minutes after the ball was put in play, and five points were all that were made.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

For those who will go to the store and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee at about half the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a basin full of coffee. Its benefit is permanent. What coffee weakens down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

THIS WEEK'S AMUSEMENTS.

Farce-Comedy, Amateur Opera and Melodrama.

The local Opera House will be open three evenings this week. Wednesday evening a musical farce-comedy, "Dodge's Trip to New York," with John E. Henshaw and May Ten Broeck in the leading roles, will be the attraction; Thursday evening the opera, "Priscilla," will be repeated by local musical talent, and Friday evening the well known melodrama, "The Cotton King," will be presented.

In "Dodge's Trip to New York" is promised a novelty in the musical farce-comedy line. It will be presented by a company headed by John E. Henshaw and May Ten Broeck, two well known comedians, and including twenty others who have also a widespread reputation. The comedy has achieved a decided success, the complications which arise during the performance being attributable to a visit to a masked ball in New York city by Howell I. Dodge, a bank president from a rural village in New Jersey. There is said to be ample scope in this slight thread of story to meet all the requirements of farce-comedy. The company includes, besides Mr. Henshaw and Miss Ten Broeck, George E. Mack, Taylor Williams, Miss Carlotta and Clementine St. Felix.

"Priscilla" will be presented by the same cast and chorus which gave such an excellent rendition of the opera at the Casino Theatre July 21 and 22, of which performance the audience and press spoke nothing but praise. The committee on arrangements are making every effort to have the coming presentation first class in every respect. The proceeds are for the benefit of the cast and chorus, whose excellent work should meet with the hearty support of the people of Newport. The cast is as follows: Priscilla, Miss Mae Titus; Resignation, Miss Hattie Hayes; Barbara, Miss Ella K. Maitland; Faith, Miss Mary Slocum; Prudence, Miss Estelle Wilcox; Miles Standish, Mr. Augustus H. Swan; John Alden, Mr. E. H. Eaton; William Bradford, Mr. Julius Lutz; Hatchet Higgins, Mr. John J. Butler; Shamito, Mr. W. J. Vars.

The scenes of "The Cotton King" are laid in Manchester, England, among the factories; the story is a pretty one of factory life, told boldly and interspersed with thrilling and dramatic situations. The beautiful scenery, all new this season, shows the pretty homes of England, the interior of an immense cotton factory with its mass of moving machinery, the dark exterior of the factory and the rough streets of Manchester. The play will be presented by a strong cast and special scenery. In conjunction with the drama the mutograph will show two hundred views of Alaska and the Klondike gold fields.

Joseph Jefferson will be at the Providence Opera House two evenings this week, presenting "Rip Van Winkle" tonight and "The Cricket on the Hearth" and "Lend Me a Shilling" tomorrow evening. Chauncey Olcott will fill out the week with "Sweet Innisfarra." At Keith's "Chimmie Fadden" will be the attraction, and the Olympic and Westminster will present vaudeville bills.

The Daniel Frohman company will conclude its engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, this week, presenting, besides "The Prisoner of Zenda," "The Mayflower," "The Late Mr. Castello," "The First Gentleman of Europe" and "The Home Secretary." At the Boston Theatre Wednesday evening Miss Fanny Davenport's much-heralded and as yet unnamed play will be given its first production on any stage. At the Museum "The Sign of the Cross" will be presented by a company headed by Charles Dalton and Miss Irene Rooke and comprising other English actors. "The Girl from Paris" continues at the Park, the Castle Square company will repeat "The Wife," and George Richards and Eugene Canfield in "My Boys" will be at the Columbia.

Eleonora Duse is to play in Monte Carlo this winter.

Charles H. Hoyt is at work on a farce to be called "A Day and a Night."

Maud Hoffman, leading lady for E. S. Willard, is a great-granddaughter of Daniel Boone, the Kentucky pioneer.

Alice Atherton, the wife of Willie Edouin, arrived in New York Saturday from Europe. She is to appear shortly at Koster & Bial's.

John Drew is rehearsing Sydney Grundy's new comedy, "A Marriage of Convenience," which will be played in New York at the conclusion of Maud Adam's engagement.

Thomas McQueen has been engaged as tenor for Mme. Scalchi's concert company, which will shortly begin a tour of the South and West. The company will sing "Faust," "Il Trovatore" and "Martha."

John G. Sparks, inseparably known to the comedy stage as a delineator of Irish character roles, will join Rich and Harris's "Courted into Court" company, opening with that organization at the Grand Opera House, New York, November 1.

Gertrude Boswell, the talented young American actress who plays Stephanis in "The Sign of the Cross," wears a beautiful gold cross, the gift of Wilson Barrett on the occasion of the one hundredth performance of the piece in London.

"The Physician," Henry Arthur Jones's play, is spoken of as a morbid production, and the fact that E. S. Willard is to appear in different plays indicates that the English actor's opening piece is not popular. There seems to be no intention of forcing it for a run.

Charles Frohman will follow "The Proper Caper" in New York with Henry Arthur Jones's "The Triumph of the Philistines." Juliette Nesville of the "In Town" company will appear as Sally Lebrune, a role she originated in the first production of the play at the St. James's Theatre in London.

Forbes Robertson's "Hamlet" has settled into such a success in London that no change of bill will be made at the Lyceum until Henry Irving returns to the house. In spite of some croaking on the first night, the general impression now seems to be that such a "Hamlet" has not been seen in London for years.

Murray Carson, once the collaborator of Louis Parker, and with him author of "Rosemary" and "Change Alley," has joined forces with Beerbohm-Tree's clever brother, Max Beerbohm. Their first play is a satirical, romantic comedy-drama, with the absurd title, "Fly on the Wheel." Willard has too call on the play, but will probably call down the line.

Mme. Helene Modjeska is about to begin a three months' season in the West. She says she will not play in New York. "I said farewell to the East three years ago," she remarked recently. "I find the West more sympathetic, New York imitates London, and seems out of touch with the remainder of the country. I have many, many good friends in the East, but the Western air and heartiness are most inspiring." Mme. Modjeska is writing her memoirs, but does not know when she will finish them.

"The Two Little Vagabonds" has been revived at the Princess in London, where it enjoyed its long run last season, and will be kept on until the Christmas holidays. There is something singular about the fate of that play in this country. It is still running at the Vaudeville in Paris, and a Paris paper recently remarked of it that the two little chaps who are its heroes are likely to become decrepid with age before the play was withdrawn. It has been running a year last February.

Mme. Lillian Nordica, who returned from Europe last week, says that she has made no definite arrangements to appear in opera, as her concert tour will last until next March. Maurice Grau is expected in New York about the first of November to consider plans for next season's grand opera at the Metropolitan Opera House, and of course Mme. Nordica hopes for an engagement there, now that her differences with Jean de Reszke have been adjusted and that she has finished her study of the part of Brunhilde.

Arthur Shirley's play, "The Bellringer," is to be produced at Brussels, Paris and New York at the same time as in England. The play has two sombre figures in it, one reminiscent of Poe and one of Lola. The bell ringer commits a murder, of which his mother is the sole witness. When called on to testify she feigns paralysis and complete inability to speak or write. The trick succeeds—the murderer escapes. The retribution overtakes the bell ringer. He is killed by a blow from his bell. Then the mother speaks to save an innocent man.

The death of "Tom" Whiffen in England the other day brings to mind the old "Pinafore" days, when New York went wild over the first of the latter-day Gilbert and Sullivan operas at the old Standard Theatre, January 15, 1879, nineteen years ago. What has become of the original cast? Some have joined the great majority, a few are still in harness, some have been lost track of altogether. Poor Whiffen, "Admiral Porter," is now dead. His wife, who was then known on the stage as Miss Blanche Galton, was the Little Buttercup. She is in England now and was at her husband's bedside when he passed away. The Hebe was Miss Vernona Jarbeau, then a stage beginner, and still before the public now, appearing in the principal role in De Koven and Smith's opera "The French Doll." William Davidge, the admirable and then veteran comedian, was the original Dick Deadeye. He died some years ago. Eugene Clarke, the original Captain Corcoran, is teaching music. Henri Laurent, who was the Ralph Rackstraw, is living in England. The minor characters of Bill Bobstay, Bob Becket and Tom Bowline were played respectively by Charles Makin, H. J. Rush and J. Wilmot. What has become of them? Perhaps it is not so strange that the ever fickle public should have lost sight of these actors, but it does seem odd that the present whereabouts of the Josephine of the original cast, a Miss Eva Mills, cannot be traced by the ordinarily well-posted man on theatrical affairs. Whether she is still alive, acting, or living in retirement is a mystery that many of the local managers whom I have seen are unable to solve.—[Writer in New York Herald.

A NOVELTY.

Seldom has fashion presented less of variety in the beginning of a season. The blouse—that is all one sees; and, though it is becoming, it grows monotonous. The princess style is revived, but even here the blouse effect is generally employed in the front.

Novelties are interesting, though one needs courage to copy them. Here is shown a gown with some novel points. The back of the waist is plain, gathered into the deep belt; but the front, as will be seen by the loose, blouse-like effect, has crept in somehow on the left side, where the loose ruffles hang over the belt.

The draped bolero fastens at the left shoulder, where it is laid in three plaits. Curious, flat jockeys open over the sleeves, which are a very small leg-o'-mutton shape. The skirt is trimmed at the left side to resemble an opening or over-lapping point. Grey cashmere with grey taffeta ruffles and steel and grey passementerie were the materials employed in the original.

The hat of grey felt turns up, as almost every hat does, at the left side of the front. Grey plumes with black wings form the trimming.

OPPORTUNITY.

Within a shadowy corner of the hall,
Thick with the dust of relics of cellitude,
The harp, his tuneful strings now silent all,
Forgotten, haply, by its mistress, stood.

How many a melody, I thought, unheard,
Sleeps in those chords—as sleeps upon the bough,
His sweet strains all in silence hushed, the bird—
Waiting the touch with voice that shall endow.

And thus how often, too, does Genius sleep,
Mute in the soul, like Lazarus the voice
Awaiting from its trance that bids it leap,
Saying, "Arise, and in thy strength rejoice!"

—[Mary J. Serrano, in the Critic, from the Spanish of Becquer.

PERSONALS.

....The German emperor is said to be growing tired of hearing his own "Song to Aegir." It is as much a bore as "God Save the Queen" is to the English royal family.

....Mrs. Annie Besant cherishes a bloodstone ring which was given her by Mme. Blavatsky. It is always upon her finger, and report says the present owner intends it to be buried with her.

....Mr. William Watson, the poet, is the son of a Yorkshire farmer, and was, it is said, intended for a farmer himself. A celebrated novelist once said of him, "I never knew a man with so many different smiles." Yet Mr. Watson's expression is generally a grave one.

....Li Hung Chang, prime minister of China, has just appointed a Chinesewoman doctor to the women of his own household. This woman is Dr. Eng, the daughter of a mandarin, and she graduated from an American university. Later she obtained her degree of doctor of medicine at the Woman's Medical College at Philadelphia. She is a convert to Christianity, but this fact did not prevent the great Chinaman from allowing her to practice her profession.

....Miss Maud Gonne, the writer and lecturer, whose work in behalf of Ireland has gained for her the title of Ireland's Joan of Arc, sailed from Queenstown for this country Saturday on the Lucania. Miss Gonne is the daughter of an English officer of the dragoons, but she has devoted a great deal of time to the Irish cause, and particularly in regard to the release of the political prisoners who are still confined in English jails. She started a journal in Paris named L'Irelande Libre, through which she has enlisted the sympathy of French people with her labors.

....Mme. Adelina Patti has a great collection of jewelry, her diamonds alone being valued at $225,000. Empress Eugenie gave her a comb set with twenty-three diamonds as a wedding present when she married the Marquis de Caux. A gift from Queen Victoria was a superb diamond locket. Baroness Burdett-Coutts once gave her an enormous single diamond set in a ring. The wonderful set of sapphires was sold when the "diva" was obliged by the law of France to divide her fortune with her first husband on separation. The late emperor of Russia was the donor of a pair of immense diamonds set as earrings. Among other articles Mme. Patti possesses twenty-three diamond bracelets and a necklace of very fine emeralds.

The Newport Journal contains the last matter in the Daily News each week, and will be sent anywhere in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year in advance. Requests for change of address should give old address as well as the new.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements, without special position, $1 a square for the first insertion and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, nonpareil type (or five-sixths of an inch) make a square. Advertisements of five lines or less are taken at about one-half these rates. A discount is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for more than one week, or when both papers are used.

Yearly or Term Advertisers are limited to their immediate business, are guaranteed but five insertions in a week, and are allowed twenty-five changes a year. Electrotypes will be used without extra charge if solid metal; "wood backs" cannot be used with safety to the press.

Advertisers using both the daily and weekly papers receive a discount on the combined rates and gain the advantage of distinct classes of readers, no person reading both the daily and weekly. The Journal goes among people who read no other local paper.

PRINTING.

The News has six steam presses and has a large and well-appointed job printing office.

SECRETARY SHERMAN.

No one will be disposed to doubt or deny the splendid record of John Sherman as a statesman. But the time has come in his history when he should retire to private life. All accounts agree that he is an embarrassment to the McKinley administration, rather than the working head of a department. It is well known that in fact he is not Secretary of State at all. Practically all the important business is done by others, he merely signing his name to the letters and papers which his assistants prepare. While to some extent this is true of all other members of the Cabinet, however much the chief is the inspiring source or the controlling factor, this is as should be expected in such cases. But, owing to the infirmities of age and the lapse of mind and memory, Secretary Sherman is only an instrument in the hands of his subordinates.

It was well understood that this would be more or less the case, even at the time of Mr. Sherman's appointment. That appointment in reality was made to create an opening for Mark Hanna through the resignation of Mr. Sherman's Senatorship. As a political move it may have been a success, but as an item of statesmanship it was a failure.

Because of this condition of things the President was careful and judicious in the selection of Judge Day as his assistant. Take, for instance, the question of our relations with Spain over the Cuban affair. It is said on good authority that the Secretary of State did not know the tenor of the note sent to the Spanish government until the time came for him to append his signature. And it is hinted that his mental condition was such that he scarcely appreciates the situation, even at this day. Says one who might to know: "Judge Calhoun was selected to go to Cuba as a special commissioner, came to Washington, received his instructions from the President and Judge Day, went to Cuba, returned and made his report, and all this without Secretary Sherman ever meeting him. Consul General Lee returns to the United States, reports and confers, time and again, with his superiors, but he has nothing to do with Mr. Sherman. England growls at Mr. Sherman for his 'shirt sleeve diplomacy' as displayed, according to the English notion, in the scalding note to Ambassador Hay. Mr. Sherman's name was signed to that note, it is true, but he never saw it until John W. Foster had written it and the President had approved, and Mr. Sherman could not now quote a single sentence of it."

All this is clearly not as it should be. Judge Day, the assistant, is perfectly competent to transact the business as the head of the department, and does so with our actual authority to proceed of his own motion. It is no wonder that he expresses himself as tired of it, and as anxious to receive an appointment in the Department of Justice. As it is with Judge Day, so is it with other high officials in that department. The country will agree that the work is done, and well done, but it is to a great disadvantage under these delicate conditions. What the President needs is a strong man, in the full vigor of his intellectual qualities, and a Secretary of State who, at the head of that department, in reality, as much as upon whom he can lean as a tower of strength, rather than be compelled to deal with an invalid in both mind and body. President McKinley is now virtually charged with the responsibilities of this Cabinet position, while having enough responsibilities of his own to occupy his sole attention. And, so far as these conditions continue, the business interests of our foreign relations will be conducted at a disadvantage. What we need in these days is a Fish like Hughes, or some Olney, either of whom was fully equipped for the important work in hand. The friends of Secretary Sherman owe it to themselves and to him to advise his retirement at the earliest possible moment.

NOT A POLITICAL VICTORY.

The result of the municipal election in Indianapolis has been proclaimed throughout all the land as a Democratic triumph; but it will by no means be so regarded when the facts are fully known and appreciated. Indianapolis is a Republican city by from four to six thousand majority. Mayor Taggart, who has just been re-elected, is a Democrat, and according to party lines could not have carried the election at all. But he had proved himself an able and efficient chief executive, and one free from political bias or corruption. Zealous partisans on the other side sought to overthrow him because of his views concerning national politics, and for nothing else. The inference is that they desired to make personal or political capital out of the change. And so they put a partisan candidate in the field who was personally unobjectionable, and conducted the contest along political lines with loud outcries concerning the tariff, free silver and the like.

The result shows that the people of that enterprising and interesting city would have none of this. What they wanted was a business administration, a man at the head of affairs who would turn neither to the right nor to the left because of personal or partisan prejudices. The issue, therefore, was really one between political or non-political control of the affairs of the corporation. The voters of the municipality declared in favor of having their business done through business methods instead of in the interest of partisanship—a declaration which those of every other city should make at the earliest opportunity.

The Philadelphia Times says: "The Indianapolis example is one that should be followed by the intelligent voters of every city, and there is little doubt that the cause of non-partisanship will be strengthened everywhere by the election of Taggart. One successful non-partisan campaign is worth hundreds of non-partisan speeches as an incentive to independent action in the election of municipal officers, for those who believe in the divorce of municipal management from partisan politics are human enough to want to succeed. Those who are willing to stand for a good cause, even though they are alone, are few and far between—never enough in any battle for the right to constitute a majority. With an occasional victory to stiffen their backbone and cheer them on, the timid and less resolute citizens who believe in non-partisanship can be the more easily induced to stand up and be counted on the right side in every city, and for this reason the triumph of non-partisanship in Indianapolis should be a cause of rejoicing among the friends of reform everywhere."

The death of Charles A. Dana, which occurred yesterday, was not at all unexpected. His serious illness had been announced from time to time, and at his advanced age there could have been no hope of recovery. Mr. Dana will long stand near the front among American newspaper editors. He was one of the ablest and most concise members of the fraternity, and was possessed of strong convictions—not always, however, of the most commendable nature. His record for consistency in his political likes and dislikes will scarcely stand to his credit, but no one will ever doubt his fearlessness and his vituperative earnestness in whatever cause he espoused. He built up a great newspaper; but with its many idiosyncrasies it failed to possess a commanding influence among the people. But all the editors and publishers of America, and many beyond, will be inclined to take off their hats, forgiving his many aberrations, and pronounce him a great man in his chosen profession.

The suggestion having been made that there should be a compromise between Tammany and the Jeffersonian Democracy, with William J. Bryan as the referee, leads Mr. George to say: "There are no factions in the Democratic party of New York city. I stand for the Jeffersonian Democracy, which is the regular Democracy, and if Mr. Croker chooses to withdraw and go back to England I have no objections. I may die, but I shall never resign under any circumstances, nor listen to any talk of compromise."

The latest fad in New York city is the giving of receptions to, and making a heroine of, Miss Evangelina Cisneros. Crowds flocked to see her, and they would be glad to hear her speak; but she has too much sense for that. In the meantime we hear very much less than formerly about her being pretty, and the daughter of one of the most distinguished families on the Island. But we are all glad that she has escaped from prison, just the same.

This is a gala day for Newport over the presence of the gunboat bearing the city's name, and the presentation of the silver service of which we have heard so much. The gunboat is dressed in an extensive array of bunting, and about the city flags are flying in honor of the occasion. Almost everybody, old and young, is on tiptoe, and paying visits to the little craft, after having made an inspection of the symbols provided in honor of the title.

Every now and then the fire fiend comes in and sweeps from the face of the earth a piece of our towns or cities. The latest example is the destruction of Windsor, N. S., said to have been one of the most beautiful towns in the dominion, and having a population of about 3,500, all of whom are now homeless. Report says that there was an area of about a mile square in flames practically at the same time. Only five buildings in the whole village remain standing.

It begins to be apparent that the wave of prosperity which seems sweeping over the land has been somewhat checked. Perhaps the expectations of the people were altogether too intense, but a certain feeling of disappointment is sure and widespread. Except for the condition of the crops, around which practically all prosperity has been centered, the promises of the spring, leading to the whole public, are not yet in the way of fulfilment.

All the stories of suffering and distress in Europe that were told before the election may or may not have been correct; but it now appears that the people of that state are sufficiently prosperous to send contributions to the New York election fund in the interest of Henry George. Just think of it—Kansas coming to the help of Greater New York in its time of emergency!

Complaints are made that the business interests of Boston are severely disturbed by the presence of the yellow fever in the South. Orders are falling off in that direction, and the volume of trade is materially diminished.

A current report says the Cubans are becoming discouraged. They do not want autonomy without independence, and if they can help themselves they will not have it.

A SCHOOL GOVERNED BY A WRITTEN CONSTITUTION.

The most interesting experiment in education, so far as I know, as well as one of the earliest, was made by one Rowland Hill when he was still a very young man. "The acknowledged superiority of our system of education," he wrote in his journal, "leads me to think that the combination of talent, energy and industry which exists in our family, directed as it is to the science of education, may some time or other produce effects which will render our name illustrious in after-ages." The "system" was nothing more or less than a written constitution under which the boys governed themselves. "I drew up a set of resolutions," he writes, "which were unanimously passed at a general meeting of the school." This was in 1817, when he was only twenty-two years old. In a very few years these resolutions expanded in the hands of the boys into an elaborate and minutely detailed set of laws, which filled more than a hundred closely printed pages. Certain of the features of the system as described by Rowland Hill are very interesting. "Soon after midsummer (1816) I established a court of justice in the school. The judge is chosen monthly by the boys. The sheriff and the keeper of the records are chosen in the same manner. The attorney and solicitor-general are appointed by me. The judge appoints the inferior officers—as the clerk and crier of the court, the constables, etc. The jury consists of six boys chosen by ballot. * * * The sheriff keeps a book in which he enters all the sentences." The penalties imposed were "the forfeiture of premial marks, a certain number of which entitle a boy to a holiday." Apparently the "swell" in this constitutional school was a chief magistrate, who, it is recorded, saves the members "a deal of trouble," and actually "put a stop to a practice" which before it "had never been found possible to check—namely, that of throwing stones." If, as some scientists say, a normal boy lives through all the periods that marks the development of our race, it will appear that Rowland Hill's constitution under this very efficient magistrate deprived his boys of their right to the recreation of the stone age.—[Harper's Round Table.

GREETING:

Whereas the town council of the town of New Shoreham on the 7th day of October A. D. 1897 did adopt and determine that it was necessary for the convenience and necessities of the public that the highway leading from a point at the easterly terminus of Ocean Avenue, so called, near the Winnebago Inn House, in said town, and running in a general Easterly direction to a point where said highway intersects the Easterly terminus of Ocean Avenue, so called, should be widened and laid out of uniform width 60 ft. wide, and did afterwards on the fourth day of October A. D. 1897 appoint Samuel M. Beer, Clarence C. Rose and Simon B. Ball, a committee, to sell and lay out said highway, and to survey, bound and mark out the same, from a point at the Easterly terminus of Ocean Avenue, so called, near the Winnebago House in said town, and running in a general Easterly direction to a point where said highway intersects the highway called main street, near the National Hotel, so called, said highway to be laid out and bounded and marked out as widened highway from a point at the Easterly terminus of Ocean Avenue, so called in said town to a point where said highway intersects the highway known as Main Street, near the National Hotel, so called, having regard and determination to diminish as little as possible of the value of the land through which said highway is to be laid out, and to make return of your doings herein with your opinion and determination thereon, and your doings and determination in relation thereto, on the 9th day of that last A. D. 1897.

Signed and sealed by order and in behalf of said Council.

EDWARD P. CHAMPLIN,
Council Clerk.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18, 8 A. M.—For New England—Fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer; northwesterly winds, shifting to easterly.

FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, Oct. 18, 8 A. M.—For Boston and vicinity—Fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer; winds shifting to easterly.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The weather is cloudy and rainy in the upper valleys and south Atlantic states; elsewhere the skies are in general free from clouds. There is no general storm in the West and the precipitation is in moderate amounts; the rainfall has been heavy in parts of the southern Atlantic coast sections. Savannah reports 2.64, and Jacksonville 2.34. There are indications of a tropical storm in the Gulf of Mexico, central south of Louisiana, its movement apparently being west of north. Cool temperatures prevail in all northern sections, although a decided rise is registered in the upper Mississippi valley. In the New England states and lake regions the morning temperatures are below 40. The lowest temperature is 26, at Havre, Mont., the highest 80, at Key West and Jupiter, Fla. New England skies are clear, with heavy frosts in many localities.

FINANCIAL.

10—Stocks at the opening showed small gains, the extreme change being ½ in Western Union, New Jersey Central and Southern preferred. Sugar opened up ⅜ and soon extended the gain to ⅞.

11—Profit taking in Sugar resulted in the loss of the initial advantage, but renewed purchases for the short account at the lower plane soon advanced the price to 126½. Consolidated Gas rose 2½, to 213. Railway shares responded fractionally, the C., C., C. & St. Louis stocks gaining 1¼ and 1½ per cent respectively. Tobacco advanced 1¼. The market was very narrow.

Noon—Money on call, nominally, at 2½ @ 3 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4½ @ 5½ per cent; sterling exchange, easy, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84½ for demand, and $4.85⅝ for sixty days; posted rates, $4.82½ @ 83½, and $4.85½; commercial bills, $4.81; silver certificates, 58 @ 58½; bar silver, 58⅝; Mexican dollars, 48⅝; government bonds, firm. The bulk of the speculation was in Sugar, which fluctuated within the limits of a point, touching 141½. The general list showed a gradual hardening tendency. Sales to noon, 124,800 shares.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

A young child of Mr. Herbert Gardner died suddenly yesterday.

The frame for the house to be built for Mr. James Taussig of St. Louis arrived Saturday and the builder commenced operations today on the foundation.

Miss Marian G. Wilcox of Fall River has been guest of Mrs. Alvin Champlin.

Mr. Julien T. Davies of New York and Dr. Kindleberger had good luck at fishing Saturday at the Dumplings.

Work has been commenced in building up the road in front of Shoreby Hill, the material being taken from the beach in front.

Mrs. Kindleberger will leave tonight for Washington, but the doctor will remain here several weeks yet.

Miss Martha Stewart of Newport entertained about twenty-five friends on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Champlin, the occasion being the anniversary of her birth. The young people enjoyed themselves with games and dancing, and refreshments were served.

RETURN OF THE LIGHT BATTERY.

Light battery F, Captain Vose, arrived at Fort Adams from New Bedford about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, all the command being in good condition. The battery left New Bedford Friday morning, and after a short march camped that afternoon in South Tiverton. Breaking camp about 9 o'clock Saturday morning, they took things easy coming home. Officers and men are very enthusiastic over their reception in New Bedford, where the people tried to do everything possible to entertain them and make them feel at home. The men were paid in New Bedford and consequently had plenty of spending money, but they found their money of little use in the old whaling town on anniversary week. It will be dangerous for any one to intimate to one of the battery men that New Bedford is not all right.

The condition of Corporal O'Brien, who was injured in the drill Thursday, is as yet uncertain, as it is not known whether the bones will knit. Mrs. O'Brien has gone to New Bedford.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

A bronze statue of Esek Hopkins, the first admiral of the Continental navy, has been placed in position in the old Hopkins burial ground in Providence, now known as Hopkins Park. The statue, which was designed by Mrs. Kitson of Boston, was secured by a bequest of Mrs. Coggeshall, a descendant of Admiral Hopkins.

The hospital corps connected with the brigade of Rhode Island militia will celebrate the first anniversary of its organization in Providence tomorrow evening, with a parade and drill, followed by a collation.

The Republican city convention in Providence Saturday afternoon nominated John E. Kendrick for mayor, Charles A. Stone for overseer of the poor, and J. T. P. Bucklin for harbor master. The nomination of a candidate for city treasurer was passed, the party not desiring to make a nomination against the present efficient treasurer, Daniel D. L. Granger. The Democrats will hold their convention this evening, and will nominate William C. Baker for mayor.

The local coal dealers of Bristol are in arms against Captain Hart of schooner Napoleon, who has been landing cargoes of coal in that town and disposing of it in small quantities directly to consumers, at rates very much below the price in the local markets. The Napoleon arrived at Bristol Friday but her captain has not yet been able to find a wharf where he can land his cargo.

Mrs. Patrick Crotwell was fatally and her husband and daughter seriously burned by the explosion of a lamp in her home on Joslin street, Providence, last evening.

The postoffice at Pawtuxet was entered by burglars Sunday morning and a small quantity of stamps and a number of letters were stolen.

The annual parade of the Knights of Columbus of Rhode Island took place in Pawtucket yesterday, one thousand members of the order participating. The Knights attended service at St. Mary's Church, where Rev. Thomas J. Fitzgerald of Uxbridge, Mass., preached a sermon on "The Catholic in Society, or the Catholic in Relation to Church and State."

The summer cottage at Pleasant Bluff belonging to Mrs. William H. Parker of Providence was totally destroyed by fire last night. The building was valued at $2,500, and the furniture at $1,200, on which there was insurance.

MRS. PELL AND MRS. BLIGHT.

By the deaths of Mrs. Atherton Blight and Mrs. Archibald M. Pell, two strong social characters were removed. Mrs. Pell was one of the few remaining connecting links between the New York of our grandfathers and the New York of today. Mrs. Pell was Miss Catherine Elizabeth Rutgers, and a member of a family the name of which is rapidly disappearing from the daily life of New York. The first of the Rutgers family in America was an Irishman, born in Belfast. He came to New York about the middle of the last century and prospered as a printer. His son, Anthony A. Rutgers, was a strong figure in New York during the days of the Revolution. He married a daughter of Nicholas Gouverneur of Newark, N. J., and had several sons, one of whom was Nicholas Gouverneur Rutgers. Mrs. Pell, who died last week in her ninety-first year, was daughter of Nicholas Gouverneur Rutgers. In 1829 she was married to Archibald M. Pell and spent many of the most active years of her life in New York during this picturesque period of old fashions and exquisite manners, which is a matter of social history with the present generation.

Mrs. Atherton Blight was one of many Bostonians who have left indelible impressions upon society abroad and in this city. Mrs. Blight was daughter of Richard S. Greenough, the sculptor, of Boston and Rome. The late Charles Moulton of Washington married a daughter of Richard Greenough, and Mr. Moulton's widow married the Count von Hegermann Lindenkrone, Danish ambassador to France. Miss Mary Moulton, niece of Mrs. Blight, married the Baron von Raaben Levetzau of Copenhagen in 1886. The daughters of Mrs. Blight, Miss Alice Blight and Mrs. William P. Thompson, were educated in Philadelphia, and have been life-long friends of Mrs. John Jacob Astor.—[New York Commercial Advertiser.

TORPEDO BOATS AS PREVENTERS OF FILIBUSTERING.

Commander R. B. Bradford, chief of the bureau of equipment, has suggested to the Navy Department that torpedo boats be employed to prevent filibustering. Commander Bradford found that vessels of the draught and displacement of cruiser Montgomery and gunboats Wilmington and Nashville were awkward to handle among the Florida keys and could not enter indentations in the coasts where expeditions were being formed. It is the opinion of officers on duty in the department that filibustering could probably be entirely prevented by a torpedo boat patrol.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. William M. Austin is seriously ill.

—Mrs. Kelley is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. E. Brad.

—The New Cliff Hotel has closed for the season.

—Rev. G. J. Magill, D. D., has returned from Montreal.

—Mr. Grant P. Taylor is spending a vacation in Brooklyn.

—Mrs. A Livingston Mason will give a reception tomorrow.

—Mr. J. J. Van Alen will return to Wakehurst October 25.

—Three lawn tennis courts are to be laid out on the Bailey's beach property.

—Mr. F. M. Jordan of Auburn, Maine, is guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Packer.

—Mrs. Ogden Goelet and Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., have returned here.

—Mrs. Read and Miss Read of Providence are spending a few days with Mrs. N. B. Brown.

—The asphalt men completed the work of repairing the pavement on Thames street yesterday, and have returned home.

—The tax collector still has a large number of tax bills which he would like to see paid, even though interest is going on now.

—The marriage of Rev. G. G. Merrill of Tuxedo Park to Miss Pauline Dresser will take place in this city in December, the date not having been fixed.

—Yesterday Ensign Jones of the Newport came ashore to pay Commander Tilley's respects to Mayor Boyle. This morning Mayor Boyle returned the visit.

—R. Lambert Lynch of London, Mr. and Mrs. R. Vernon Munn of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Windsor Weld of Boston are at the Mucachinger-King cottage.

—The Woman's Newport League has arranged a concert to be given at the Shiloh Baptist Church Wednesday, the proceeds to be for the Day Nursery fund.

—Second Lieutenant H. L. Packham has been detached from revenue cutter Winona and ordered to join practice ship Chase, upon the arrival of that vessel at Key West.

—Mrs. J. R. Drexel, while bicycling on Bellevue avenue this afternoon, slipped from her wheel and sprained her ankle slightly. She was taken home by Mrs. Prescott Lawrence, who happened to drive by.

—Arrivals at the Perry House include: L. S. Clarke and F. H. Hidden of New York, and C. W. Newman, E. W. Strong, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Pratt and wife and J. J. Calvin of Boston.

—Cadoal Four Brothers, with a party of amateur sports on board, bound for a few hours' gunning, encountered a pretty heavy wind off Castle Hill yesterday afternoon, which broke her boom. The boat was brought back under a lug sail and the gunning trip was postponed.

—The annual meeting of Ninigret Lodge was held Saturday evening at the lodge in Charlestown, R. I., when the following officers were elected: President, Isaac H. Southwick, Jr.; secretary, Edwin S. Burdick; treasurer, William P. Buffum; lodge committee, W. P. Sheffield, Jr.

—It is understood that Alderman B. Hammett Stevens will decline to be a candidate for re-election as alderman from the First ward, and that Mr. William F. Carr, president of the common council, will probably be promoted to a seat in the aldermen's chamber.

—The harvest festival service at the United Congregational Church last evening was attended by an audience which nearly filled the auditorium. The exercises consisted of recitations by several of the larger scholars of the Sunday school, a story written by the pastor, Rev. Dr. McClelland, and special music by the choir.

—Sunday afternoon there was a short but eventful runaway on Bridge street. As the 5 o'clock train went out a top buggy with a family party was passing along, when the horse became frightened at the train and ran away. The buggy top struck the railroad gate and was smashed, and the occupants were thrown out and somewhat bruised.

—In the probate court this morning letters of administration on the estate of Alice Marvel were granted to William W. Marvel. The will of Esther P. Johnson was proved, and letters testamentary were granted to Edward S. Peckham. Petitions were received for administration on the estates of Mary M. Scaife and Jeremiah O'Connell, and for the probate of the will of Harriet S. Cranston, and were continued to November 8.

—The Providence Telephone Company has connected the underground wires in the vicinity of Morton Park with the exchange, and today men are at work removing poles and overhead wires in that vicinity. It is expected that within the next ten days this work will be nearly completed all over town, and the telephone lines will be in winter condition, to remain so until the new exchange is completed, when all the wires will connect therewith.

—There was a general demand for good fires and winter clothing yesterday. The mercury in the thermometer took a drop of about twenty degrees, and the wind blew fresh and cold from the north. The same conditions existed this morning, but as the day advanced the wind died out and the weather became much warmer. The heavy blow of Saturday night and Sunday morning caused a big descent of autumn leaves, dead twigs, acorns, chestnuts, apples and other things from trees.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

A large audience assembled Sunday morning in the Friends' meeting house to hear Mr. Samuel H. Hadley of the Jerry McAuley Mission of New York city. In the afternoon there were present from the Friends' meeting in Newport, and took part in the meeting after Mr. Hadley had spoken, Mr. and Mrs. James Estes and Mr. John S. Kimber. At all three meetings the large congregations seemed deeply interested.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duffy and Mrs. Lydia Goddard of Newport were in town Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. DeBlois of Swansea were visiting relatives in town Sunday.

Mrs. Fordon Walker of Seituate is guest of Mr. Albert Walker.

Mr. Charles Brownell of North Dighton was guest of his sister, Mrs. Elwood G. Macomber, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry G. Randall entertained Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Abiel Hathaway of Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Brayton and their two daughters, Clara and Edna, Mrs. A. V. L. Dennis, Mrs. A. M. Durfee, Miss Kate L. Durfee and Mr. Samuel A. Carter and family.

Mr. George B. Chase and a friend of Providence were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Chase Saturday and Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Chase also entertained a large family party in honor of Mrs. Chase's birthday.

The Citizens' Good Government Club held its semi-monthly meeting at Durfee's tea house Saturday evening, when between thirty-five and forty members were present. After the transaction of the regular business of the meeting Mr. Charles Acton Ives of Newport was introduced, and gave an interesting and instructive address on "Good Government," in which he urged upon his hearers the necessity of a clean ballot and an honest count as the fundamental principle of good government, giving valuable legal information on that point and congratulating the club on its avowed purpose of separating town affairs from national politics. After the address the members sat down to an oyster supper and indulged in a general talk on the topics brought out in the address, the party separating about 11 o'clock. Several applications for membership were presented to the nominating committee, and the applicants will probably be admitted at the next meeting.

A PORTSMOUTH PORTUGUESE DROWNED.

A Fall River dispatch says word was received there today of the drowning of Arthur Bonassa, aged eighteen years, at Portsmouth, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A small sailboat was capsized and Bonassa and three companions were thrown overboard. Three clung to the boat and were rescued by the crew of schooner William R. Hourston, coal laden, for Fall River. Bonassa's body has not yet been recovered.

Nature's Danger Signals.

Inability to read small print, sew or do fine work, lack of clear distant vision, eyes water or become dim, redness of the eyes or lids, pains in the eyeballs, temples, forehead or back of the head: these are nature's danger signals and should not be neglected. If you have any of the symptoms, let us examine your eyes scientifically and advise you; this costs you nothing, although given through eighteen years of experience. Should glasses be a case for the moment I will tell you so. If glasses will correct the trouble, you will be given those that are proper, at a reasonable price.

ACROSS THE GOLDEN GATE.

Long-Distance Swimmer Accomplishes the Difficult Feat.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—John Coughlin, the long-distance swimmer of the Dolphin swimming and boating club, yesterday accomplished the remarkable feat of crossing the Golden Gate from Fort point to Lime point. He swam against a flood tide and made the distance in thirty-two minutes. A large number of persons in boats accompanied the swimmer.

This is the first time any one has swum across the Golden Gate from point to point. Cavill, the Australian, swam from Lime point, intending to land at Fort point, but he was carried far beyond the Fort on the beach. He swam from shore to shore in one hour eighteen and one-half minutes. Coughlin's swim was much more successful, as he reached his objective point and made the trip in twenty-six and one-half minutes quicker time, just two-thirds of Cavill's time.

National Woman's Suffrage Association.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—The National American Woman's Suffrage Association will hold conferences in Chicago Friday and Saturday, November 19 and 20 next, at Association hall. There will be both day and evening sessions. Susan B. Anthony and Miss Carrie Chapman Catt of New York, Rev. Anna Shaw of Philadelphia, Mary G. Hay of California, Mrs. Julia Mills Lunn, president of the Illinois Suffrage Association, and others will speak.

Another Victim of the Cincinnati Theatre Disaster.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—Late last night Mrs. A. Seidler of Covington Ky., one of the victims of the opera house disaster, died at the hospital. This makes two deaths last night and four fatalities thus far.

HINTS ABOUT BATHS.

There are very many serious illnesses which people suffer from in after years that can be safely traced back to the injudicious way in which nurses and mothers allow children to be bathed. In many nurseries, especially if it is a large one, there is one hard and fast rule laid down for how and when the children should be bathed.

Very often the method followed is the one that their mothers or grandmothers were bathed by many years ago, and this with no thought at all on the subject. Perhaps the child is a delicate one and the mother was as strong as a little bear, but that makes no difference in the treatment, and so the child is plunged regularly into a cold bath, while its little teeth chatter and its lips grow blue and it shivers for an hour after. While, on the other hand, if the mother has been delicate, the child is treated to warm baths and hot bathrooms, until if it is strong and healthy it suffers in every way from even an ill-considered course of treatment.

A child should never be bathed in cold water, and as persons grow older they should not plunge into cold water if the heart is at all weak or the circulation feeble. Sufferers from congestion must also avoid cold-water baths. When persons are strong they may take a cold morning tub many. They should jump into it the moment they wake and before the natural warmth of bed has left the body. The temperature of the water should be not less than 50 degrees Fahrenheit or over 60 degrees.

The way to tell if this cold-water bath agrees with you is to notice how you feel when you come out of it. If you feel all your blood tingling in your veins and you feel warmer than before you went into the water it shows it agrees with you and does you good. If, however, instead of the warm glow you feel chilly and shivery, if your lips turn blue and your teeth chatter; if you can't get warm for hours afterward, then you may be sure that you are doing the worst thing in the world, and that you should give up the cold bath at once and never try it again. Where persons are not strong or have heart trouble or a tendency to it; when they are anæmic or suffer from weak circulation or indigestion or lung trouble, the morning tub should always be a tepid one; not hot, but one with a temperature from 85 to 90 degrees.

You can remain in this for some few minutes, and when you come out you should vigorously rub the body with a rough towel. A hot bath, that is one in which the temperature is 100 degrees, should never be used as a daily rule, as it is very weakening. The habit some people have of taking every night a bath as hot as they can stand it is prejudicial in the extreme. For them, however, who suffer from a rush of blood to the head a hot bath is most valuable, but must not be taken daily.

After hunting, cycling or any active and healthy exercise, a hot bath acts like a tonic, and should be taken as soon as you get into the house. In case of a chill, a cold or extreme fatigue a hot bath should be taken at once.—[Chicago Daily News.

THE VALUE OF LEGS.

Few people appreciate as they should the advantage of having legs. It is true that many have awakened to the fact that legs are good for working the pedals on a wheel, and others think them serviceable in whirling their bodies two by two over the polished surface of a ballroom floor in the early morning hours, when they would better be sleeping. But how many there are who do not appreciate the blessing of having two sound legs to walk on, and who do not realize that, having them, they are independent of circumstances!

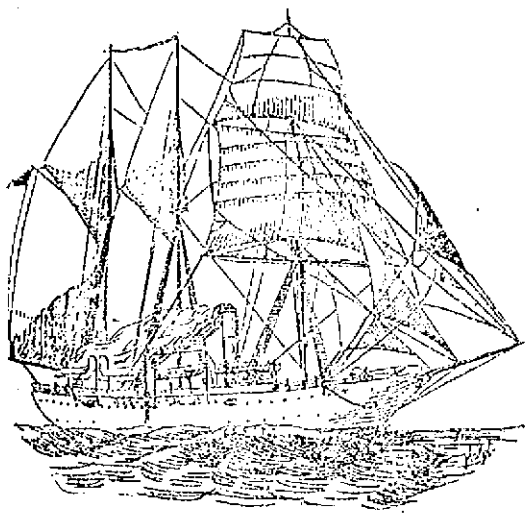
Young or old, rich or poor, in good weather or in bad, in the city or in the country, over rough roads or smooth, or no roads at all, they can take themselves out, they can spur up the circulation in the week of a sapping nerve fever to the better of the body and relaxing Fatigues; they can expand the lungs with fresh, pure air, and blow out the cobwebs of the day that ask only to be let alone to take root and bear deadly fruit; they can clear the brain, banishing away the cobwebs of disappointments, doubt and melancholy, filling their place with the inspiration born of exercise and a healthful body.

Horses have a terrible time if they are ever lame, or have chilblains, wear ill-fitting shoes and dust-proof leathers, close fitted, clumsy gear, shod by some blacksmith of three, and as unlovely as possible, and of no use in the market.

Perhaps this reason why so few appreciate the treasure they possess in their legs is because so few know how to use them. The walker should step briskly, with head erect, shoulders back and arms swinging freely, keeping deeply with clear breath. Nothing is better than walking, for it uses that tube, the lung, to pure, clear air, and there is nothing like a good walk to drive the blood into every nook and corner of the body.

Foot walking is good at any time except just after a hearty meal. For lack of all else the footman or at behind. For students or sedentary work it is invaluable. If hard study has to be continued late into the night, a walk will do much more certain and refreshing if the mind is clearer and soothed by a brisk turn of five or ten minutes. Such a turn is useful, too, if drowsiness comes before the work is finished; it rouses up the tired brain cells and freshens the jaded memory.—[Youth's Companion.

GIFT OF THE CITY.



Silver Service Presented to Gunboat Newport.

Arrival in the Harbor of the Trim Little Craft—Uneventful Voyage From Boston—This Afternoon's Ceremony on Board—Presentation Address by Mayor Boyle, and Reply by Commander Tilley—Description of the Service and of the Ship.

Gunboat Newport, named after this city, reached the upper harbor about 9 o'clock Saturday evening, and anchored near the moorings of the training ships off Fort Greene, where she will remain while here, except for the time tomorrow when she comes to Long wharf to allow the school children to visit her.

The Newport left the Charlestown navy yard, Boston, Friday afternoon, and as she passed the battleships in that port presented a pretty sight, her officers, crew and marine guard being drawn up on deck in a long line, and saluting the crews of the big ships as they were passed. The other ships' crews flocked to the sides and saluted the latest commissioned vessel of the navy as she sailed by.

Friday night the Newport lay at anchor off the race at Provincetown, and early Saturday morning a start was made for Newport. The voyage was a pleasant one until the vessel was off Block Island when the wind began to blow and pile up the sea in a threatening manner. The Newport, however, proved to be a good sea boat, and rode the waves easily. Off the harbor Pilot McDonald spoke the vessel, but Commander Tilley decided that he needed no pilot to bring the Newport into the port for which she was named, and so the officers of the ship brought her to her anchorage.

Work was completed, but because she was scheduled to be here today. Before she leaves New York her interior work will be finished and her stores so adjusted as to properly trim the vessel and put her on an even keel.

The vessel looks small; in fact, on the water line she is about the length of Commodore Gerry's Electra. She has, however, considerably more freeboard than any of the yachts, and with her tall spars makes a more imposing appearance. She carries three yards on her foremast, one being at present on deck, and their size, compared with those on Mr. Drexel's yacht Sultana, which has a rig similar to that of the Newport, plainly shows the difference between a yacht and a man-of-war.

Yesterday the committee on the presentation of the silver service visited the Newport to consult with Commander Tilley. He announced that the vessel would be open to the general public Monday and Wednesday mornings, from 10 to 12 o'clock. Monday afternoon is given over to the presentation exercises; Tuesday to the school children, when the vessel will be at the Fall River line dock; Wednesday afternoon the vessel will start for Providence, where she will remain until Friday, when she will leave for the Brooklyn navy yard to fit out further for the Nic-

The Artillery's Salute.

Saturday afternoon the Artillery's gun squad, under Lieutenant Colonel Bliss, proceeded to Fort Greene, prepared to fire a national salute as soon as the Newport should show herself. The weather put a damper on most of Saturday, despite the College boxes, and there was a large gathering of spectators to see the last arrival of the mass fleet. They waited, and waited, and waited; so did the gun squad. As the sun sank lower and lower in the western sky it made a very pretty picture, one that many persons do not often

A PECULIAR REMEDY.

Something About the New Discovery for Curing Dyspepsia.

The Rev. F. L. Bell, a highly esteemed minister residing in Weedsport, Cayuga Co., N. Y., in a recent letter writes as follows: "There has never been anything that I have taken that has relieved the Dyspepsia from which I have suffered for ten years except the new remedy called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Since taking them I have had no distress at all after eating and again after I lay down can sleep well." Rev. F. L. Bell, Weedsport, N. Y., formerly Malta, Ohio.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a remarkable remedy, not only because it is a certain cure for all forms of indigestion, for it seems to act as thoroughly in old chronic cases of Dyspepsia as well as in mild attacks of indigestion or biliousness. A person has dyspepsia simply because the stomach is overworked, all it wants is a harmless, vegetable remedy to digest the food and give it the much needed rest.

This is the secret of the success of this peculiar remedy. No matter how weak or how much disordered the digestive way be, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest the food whether the stomach works or not. New life and energy is given not only to the stomach but to every organ and nerve in the body. A trial of this splendid medicine will convince the most skeptical that Dyspepsia and all stomach troubles can be cured. The tablets are prepared by the Stuart Chemical Co. of Marshall, Mich., but so popular has the remedy become that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can now be obtained at any drug store at 50 cents per package. Send for book on stomach diseases free.

GIFT OF THE CITY,

have an opportunity to watch, but the spectators were not looking that way; the channel entrance past Fort Adams was the point of their observations. There was a slight mist on the water, and most of the eyes were unaccustomed to watching yacht races or picking out a vessel at sea; consequently there were many false alarms, because there were several vessels arriving during the afternoon. One in particular was selected as sure to be the Newport, but when she finally showed her colors she looked about as much unlike the pictures of the Newport as she well could be, and everybody allowed that they had been deceived. Anything with a sail on it in the offing was at first taken for the expected vessel, but they usually proved to be fishing catboats, or at best small fishing schooners. So the hours went by until at 5 o'clock the sunset gun from Fort Adams boomed, the flags at the fort, the Training Station and on the yachts dropped, and the time for salutes was over, according to naval etiquette, for the day.

At 6 o'clock this morning the Artillery squad was promptly on hand, knowing that this time there was no doubt about the matter. Armorer Lawton had the pieces and the powder ready long before the appointed time, and just as colors broke out and the morning gun boomed the Artillery pieces began firing the national salute of twenty-one guns ordered by Governor Dyer. Coincident with this the Newport's little saluting guns boomed forth a salute of eleven guns to Commodore Wallace's flag. As soon as the Artillery guns stopped the Constellation replied to the Newport with a salute of seven guns, and then the Newport answered the Artillery's salute of twenty-one guns. This closed the gun functions, and the crowd dispersed.

On Board the Boat.

This morning at 10 o'clock Congressman Bull and Postmaster Young of the testimonial committee took the service to the ship and turned it over to the commander, who placed it in position for the formalities this afternoon. At 1:30 o'clock the presentation committee met at Kinsley's wharf, and taking launches provided by the officers of the Naval Training Station and Torpedo Station proceeded to the Newport, where they were courteously received by Commander Tilley and other officers of the vessel. The other guests, about fifty in number and including Governor Dyer and members of his personal staff, prominent army and navy officials, and members of the city government, reached the ship about fifteen minutes later, and when all were assembled in the cosy little cabin of the gunboat, Mayor Bayle was introduced and made the following address, presenting the silver service in behalf of the citizens of Newport:

Commander Tilley and officers of the United States gunboat Newport. Ladies and Gentlemen:

My fellow-citizens have delegated me to perform the very pleasant duty of presenting to the vessel named for our beautiful and historic city their token of appreciation of federal recognition. As to the worthy execution of this commission I have my doubts, but I sincerely hope, sir, that the inadequacy of my efforts will not chill the heartiness nor detract from the sincerity so characteristic of the people of Newport—for I assure you that the feelings which thus prompt them have their source deep down in hearts as hospitable as they are patriotic.

Naturally we are exceedingly proud of the signal distinction given our city, and quite naturally also we are inclined to flatter ourselves with the belief that the national authorities, in naming one of our war vessels Newport, but bring into lasting and deserved prominence a name that has always shed lustre on the naval annals of the republic. In the early days—those days that tried men's souls—even before the gun was fired that echoed round the world, the people of Newport were noted as ardent aspirants for nationality and as unflinching adherents to the cause of popular liberty; and ever since their heroic and self-sacrificing deeds, on land as well as sea, have illumined our country's history. What American can or will ever forget the Perrys? And where is the true American seaman, when he reflects upon the imperishable glories of their careers, to whom there will not come inspiration and consuming longing to emulate their example.

The Perrys and others of immortal fame were Newporters; and so also were hosts of others who fought and bled for home and country, and who now sleep in their humble tombs. Their memory is treasured, though their figures animate neither bronze nor marble and their names and deeds adorn and glorify no scroll of fame.

What American is unmindful of Lake and unappreciative of his brilliant services to country—to whose professional wisdom, foresight and labors must be credited the War College and the efficient training system of the navy of today. We now claim him as a Newporter, and also claim that Newport has been an incentive to him in his exalted rank and deep interest in the growing efficiency and promising future of the navy.

Newport, Mr. Commander, is comparatively small, and so is the warship that bears her name. The former nevertheless has always been sufficiently large to supply numerous heroes for national defense; and may the latter be ever ready and willing to sustain the national honor as well as that of the patriotic city whose name she is destined to carry, through calm and storm, to friend and foe. May the time never come, sir, when it shall be necessary for this proud ship to speak with the accents of war; but if that time ever does come, may she speak with no uncertain sound and to the dismay and destruction of her enemies.

To you, sir, her commander and representative, and in behalf of the people of Newport, I have the honor to present this testimonial of their deep appreciation and good-will, expressing the sincere hope that the gunboat Newport will long ride the wave and braved every storm. And to yourself, your fellow-officers and crew, I but bespeak the hearty wishes of my fellow-citizens when I say: May all of you long and faithfully serve—as it is now your proud privilege—under the star-spangled banner; and long may Old Glory wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Commander Tilley accepted the service in a brief address.

After the formalities the guests were pleasantly entertained by the officers of the Newport and were given an opportunity to make a thorough inspection of the vessel, finding many things to admire in the equipment and furnishings of the craft. During the afternoon the Second U. S. Artillery band, under the leadership of Professor Hall, gave a concert on the deck of the gunboat, through the courtesy of Colonel Pennington of Fort Adams. At 4 o'clock the guests left the vessel, having thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality of the officers.

Tonight's Reception.

This evening at the Casino Club parlors the testimonial committee will give a reception to Commander B. F. Tilley and the other officers of the Newport, to which subscribers to the fund, members of the city government and a number of other guests have been invited. The reception will begin at 8:30 and conclude at 10:30 o'clock, and during these two hours there will be plenty of music, Commander John McDowan having offered the services of the full Naval Training Station band and the Newport orchestra, Professor Appelles, having offered its services for the evening. The latter will render the following program, the opening selection being a new march written by Professor Appelles and dedicated to the new gunboat.

March, "Newport" — Appelles
Dedicated to Gunboat Newport.
Overture, "Dervoti e gli Eremiti" — Lamotte
Concert Valse, "L'Ivresse" — Waldteufel
Grand Selection, "Bohemian Girl" — Balfe

Dance Napolitaine — Tinde
Rosamelle, "Gossip" — Kerker
"La Mascha," Serenade Espagnole — Eilenberg
Clarinet obbligato by Mr. Gilliam.
March Militaire, "Stars and Stripes Forever" — Sousa
Finale, "Star Spangled Banner."

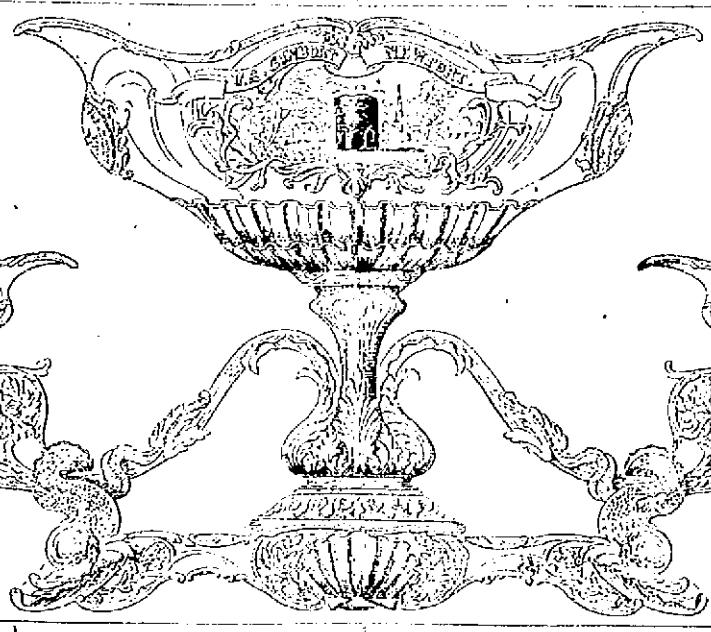
The Service.

The silver service is in six pieces, including a centre-piece, a pitcher and four tureens. The main feature of the group, the largest and most elaborate, is the centre-piece, which is composed of a jardiniere or flower bowl resting in an inverted shell, supported on a graceful standard rising from the centre of the base. On either side of the standard is a branch, twining in graceful curves and each supporting a smaller bowl, designed for fruit. These smaller bowls are supported on the base by delphins, whose tails are twisted about the branches and whose heads rest upon the base, with which they are merged at this point. The bowl has a graceful, wide and sweeping curve, the top undulating and curling like the top of a wave breaking on the shore. On the sides are etchings, one representing the old Stone Mill and the other the statue of Commodore Matthew C. Perry on Touro Park. At the ends are the seals of the city and the Navy Department. Above the representation of the Old Stone Mill are the words "U. S. Gunboat Newport" on a graceful ribbon. The plinth or base is oval in shape, sea shells, seaweed and the dolphins forming the decorations. The centre-piece is twelve inches high and its length is twenty-eight inches.

The tureens, two of one size and two of a smaller, adhere to the same general arrangement of bowls, resting in a scallop shell, with dolphins at the base, and a broad and wide plinth with curling edges. The handles are formed of dolphins with spreading tails, and the handle of the cover is also composed of two dolphins, holding between them a shell. On the front is seen the seal of the city of Newport and on the back the seal of the Navy Department.

The pitcher is of tall and graceful shape, having the same curve noted in the other pieces, and the same general decorative treatment. The city seal adorns the front, and the handle is formed by a dolphin. On this piece is the inscription "Presented to U. S. Gunboat Newport by the Citizens of Newport, Rhode Island, Oct. 18, 1897."

The designs are especially artistic, graceful curves predominating in the several pieces, and the various details being suggestive of the sea. The seals and historical scenes etched upon the pieces are appropriate to the city whose name the gunboat bears, and a naval hero in whom Newport takes great pride. The service is finished in the dull pearl surface, which is especially fitting to the surroundings in which it is to be placed. It is the work of the Gorham Manufacturing Company of Providence and reflects credit alike on the designers and the silversmiths who wrought it. It was furnished through H. A. Heath & Co. of this city.



The Ship.

The Newport is one of six composite boats authorized by act of Congress approved March 2, 1895. These vessels are of two different types, one having full sail power, and propelled, when steaming, by a single screw worked by a triple-expansion engine; the other carying sail enough only to steady them in a seaway, and driven by twin screws, actuated each by its own engine of the triple-expansion type. Constituting the former type are the Newport and Vicksburg, which were built at Bath; the Annapolis, at the Crescent Shipyard, Elizabeth, N. J., and the Princeton, which is still at the yard of J. H. Dialogue & Son in Camden, N. J. Of these the Annapolis is in active service, and the Newport and Vicksburg were launched at Bath in November of last year.

The Newport is a light-draft, composite vessel, barkentine-rigged, of 1,000 tons' displacement, one hundred and sixty-one tons larger than the Bancroft and one hundred and seventy-seven tons smaller than gunboats Castine and Machias, and carries a complement of one hundred and forty-six officers, men and marines. Her principal dimensions are: Length on load-water line, 168 feet; beam, extreme, at load-water line, 36 feet; draft, normal, at bottom of keel, 12 feet; displacement, normal, about 1,000 tons; indicated horse-power, about 800; speed an hour, in knots, 12.

The framing is of steel from the keel up, the upper edge of the wood plank lapping the top side plating about two feet. Plank of Georgia pine is worked on the frames, secured thereto by composition bolts in such a manner as to prevent galvanic action. The outside surface of the plank is coppered. No plating is worked on the under-water body of the vessel, except the keel plates, a strip of plating on each side of the keel plates under the boilers, to form the lower portion of a water tank, and narrow strips for the plates under the longitudinals and bilge keels. The entire top sides are plated, as on steel vessels. Throughout the machinery space an inner bottom of plating is worked, giving added strength to this part of the vessel, enabling the bilge to be kept clean, and affording additional means of safety should the outer bottom be ruptured.

The engine is of the triple-expansion type, with cylinders of 15½, 23½ and 38 inches diameter, with a common stroke of 30 inches, to run at 150 revolutions a minute when developing the 800 horse-power, and inducing a speed of twelve knots. When going under sail alone the engines will be uncoupled, allowing the shafting and screw to revolve freely; and so slight is the retarding influence of the screw, thus disengaged, that there is every reason to expect a sailing speed equal to the possibilities of the steam power conditions.

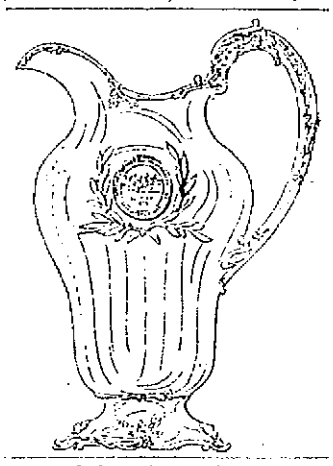
The vessel has two single-ended "Scotch" boilers, with corrugated furnaces, each three feet in diameter. Each boiler has a diameter of 10½ feet and a length of 10½ feet, with 39 square feet of grate surface and 1,250 feet of heating surface, making a total heating surface of 2,500 square feet and a total grate surface of 78 square feet. She has moderate forced draught, induced by two blowers for each boat, applied directly to the ash-pit. The boilers are placed side by side in the same compartment, with a common fireroom. The normal coal supply is 100 tons, with a total bunker capacity of 238. The boat is lighted by electricity and provided with steam windlasses and steam steering gear.

The armament consists of six 5-inch, four 6-pounder and two 1-pounder guns, all rapid-fire, disposed in this order: Four 5-inch guns, in two batteries, port and starboard, on the gun deck amidships, the two other 5-inch guns being carried on the main deck, one at the bow and one at the stern, each having a wide arc of fire. The 6-pounder guns are carried on the gun deck, two well forward, one on either bow and two amidships between the 5-inch guns, respectively in the port and starboard batteries. The 1-pounder guns are disposed where most advantageous on the hurricane berthing. For the 5-inch guns there are 500 rounds of ammunition; for the 6-pounders, 2,002 rounds, and for the 1-pounders, 1,200 rounds.

The contract price for the boat was $229,000.

The gangway boards, which were especially designed for the boat, are of peculiar interest to Newport. The design was suggested by the early history of Rhode Island and this city, the general scheme being typical of the friendly relations between Roger Williams and the other early settlers and the Narragansett Indians, from whom William Coddington and his associates purchased for forty fathoms of beads the island of Aquidneck. Upon an Indian rawhide shield in the centre is embossed the seal of the city, about which are grouped an English halberd, sword and matchlock of the period of the founding of the state, and the bow, arrow and quiver, war clubs and hunting spears of the Indians, interwoven with strings of beads. Below is a semi-wreath of holly, emblematic of the good-will and friendship that existed at the time of the city's origin, while at the top of the design is a double semi-wreath of laurel, emblematic of the victory of civilization over barbarism, and, as a crown of honor to the religious liberty and progress the city has enjoyed since its foundation, a representation of the Old Stone Mill, which is closely identified with Newport's early history and one of its most interesting historical relics, having been built, probably, by the early settlers in the latter part of the seventeenth or early part of the eighteenth century. These ornamental boards are placed one on the port and the other on the starboard gangway.

Since launching, the gunboat was supplied with her engines and machinery at



Bath, and then taken to the Portsmouth navy yard, where changes were made in the interior arrangement of the officers' quarters, it being the intention when these changes were ordered to assign the vessel to the Naval Academy for the practice cruises of the cadets. It was at first expected that the Newport would be ready for service early in the summer, but the alterations required a longer time than was anticipated. Several weeks ago the boat was towed to the Boston navy yard, where the work of preparing her for sea was completed.

Several officers have been assigned to the command of the Newport, but the delay in getting her ready for service has necessitated a change in the plans of the department. Late in September Commander A. B. Lillie was ordered to command the boat, but these orders have been revoked, and the choice has fallen upon Commander Benjamin F. Tilley. Her other officers are Lieutenant J. H. Bull, executive officer; Lieutenant J. T. Newton, navigator; Ensign J. S. Chase, Ensign R. R. Belknap, Ensign J. H. Bayard, and Ensign H. S. Hixer, watch and division officers; Assistant Surgeon P. E. Riggs, Passed Assistant Engineer W. H. Alderdice and Paymaster E. D. [illegible].

Commander Tilley.

Commander Benjamin F. Tilley, the first commander of the Newport, is a native of Rhode Island, and entered the Naval Academy September 22, 1863, when the school was located at Newport, and graduated in 1867. He was promoted [illegible] in 1868, to master in 1870, commander in 1879, lieutenant in 1871, promoted to lieutenant commander in September, 1887, and to commander in September of last year. He has served on the Franklin, Dale, Lancaster, Pensacola, New Hampshire, Powhatan, Standish, Tennessee and San Francisco, on ordinance duty at the New York

OPENING THE SEASON.

First Football Match Resulted in a Victory for the Newports.

The first football game of the season was played on Freeboby Park Saturday afternoon, between the Volunteers and a picked eleven called the Newports. The conditions of weather and ground suggested base ball rather than football. The grass in left field was long and finer than during the base ball season, and the heat was rather too much for good football. There was a good-sized gathering of spectators, and as usual they crowded about the players so that round-the-end runs were almost impossible.

Both teams showed lack of practice. The Volunteers were heavier and stronger, but the Newports knew most about the game. The others, however, under the circumstances were able to hold them well, and while the play was almost always in the Volunteers' territory, and the Newports had the ball nearly all the time, they were able to score but one touch-down in the first half. This was brought about by a long run around the end by Carter on a double pass, followed by a round-the-end run by Coggeshall, who scored. In the second half Carter made another good run, but though the Newports tried hard they could not get the ball over the line, time being called with the ball about five yards from the Volunteers' goal. J. Sullivan and Martin were slightly injured in the last half, and gave way to new players. The line-up was as follows:

Volunteers.		Newports.

THE TROUBLE WITH TIVERTON'S WATER SUPPLY.

The town of Tiverton has received another notice of impending trouble if the waters of Stafford pond are taken for a water supply. It comes from the Estes family of Fall River. Speaking of the subject the Fall River News says:

The Estes, or Maplewood mill, is on Sucker brook, which is the outlet of Stafford pond, and which flows into South Watupa, of which it is believed to be the largest single source of supply. More than fifty years ago the late Job Estes father of John H. Estes, located his mill on the brook and put in a water wheel. The water power, with auxiliary steam power, has been used ever since. The mill also uses the water for bleaching, dyeing and rinsing purposes, for which it is particularly adapted on account of its remarkable purity. In addition to the dam at the Estes mill, the concern also owns the old Eagle mill dam, and Mr Estes and the Watuppa Reservoir Company, as tenants in common, own the outlet of Stafford pond and control the water gate.

It will be seen readily that the question is one of great importance, as it is well understood that if Tiverton condemns Stafford pond pipes will be extended to Newport, and there would be a practical condemnation of the entire pond, which would have most serious results on the Estes interests, the Fall River Bleachery, the Watupa Reservoir Company and the city of Fall River. The matter will have to be settled in the United States courts, as Stafford pond is in one state and its outlet in another. Stafford pond is twenty-five feet higher than Watuppa, there being a steady current from the latter to the former.

The question bids fair ultimately to touch the whole matter of the water supply of Fall River, and the interests of all riparian proprietors on Watuppa pond.

THE FIRST CANVASS.

The board of aldermen met Saturday afternoon to make the first canvass of the voting lists for the municipal and senatorial election on Tuesday, November 2. All the members were present, and spent an hour and a quarter in making corrections to the lists. These corrections included the striking off of the names of persons who have died since the previous canvass, in April; the changing of numerous names from one list to another on account of the change of residences of the voters, and the addition of several who, for one reason or another, have become qualified to vote. This last-named class includes a number reported by the collector of taxes, who, having registered, have qualified themselves to be voters by the payment of a tax.

The board adjourned to meet next Saturday afternoon to make another preliminary canvass, and will complete the work Wednesday, October 27, the last day for paying taxes and thereby qualifying for voting at the election in November being the preceding Tuesday.

Among the names added to the lists was that of Alexander Agassiz, who in a letter to City Clerk Stevens declared his intention of becoming a citizen of Newport and, being otherwise qualified, who thus is made a full-fledged citizen of this city. It is understood that Messrs. Henry A. C. Taylor and Robert Goelet have also taken steps to become citizens of Newport. Ex-Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry early in the summer registered at the City Hall and thus declared his intention of becoming a citizen, but his residence in Newport will not be long enough to give him full privileges until next year, when he will have made his residence here for twelve months, which is all that a real estate owner requires to acquire citizenship. It is possible that other summer residents will become citizens within a short time.

JAMESTOWN SEWERS.

Review of Recent Orders and Work for Their Construction.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

In view of the general discussion in town regarding the sewer question, the following brief summary of the recent history of the town in this matter is believed to be of interest:

At the April town meeting a resolution calling for a sewer from Mrs. Gammell's on North road to the Town beach, to be laid before July 1, 1897, and that the town council contract for the same, was passed by a vote of 34 to 12.

At a meeting of the council April 26 Thomas C. Watson, president of the council, was made a committee upon this sewer, with power to confer with Thomas H. Clarke in regard to crossing his land; also with Captain Cotton as to the probable cost of building the sewer.

May 24, at a meeting of the council, President Thomas C. Watson, committee on the above-named sewer, made a report in regard to its cost, which, however, does not appear on the records. The estimate was made upon the cost provided there was no rock. Mr. Watson also reported that the proposition to cross the land of T. H. Clarke had been abandoned. It was then voted that the contract should not be awarded before September 27.

At the regular meeting of the council September 27 it was voted that the sewer be built, and President Thomas C. Watson was appointed a committee to receive bids from plans and specifications furnished by J. P. Cotton, the bids to be opened before the council at a special meeting to be called by President Watson.

At the same meeting a petition was received from Charles Frasch, G. A. Clarke and Eben N. Tefft for a sewer in Howland avenue from Narragansett avenue to the corner of West street." The petition was granted, and Councilman Gardner was appointed a committee to receive bids. It seems there were but two bids for building this sewer, and the lowest was Councilman Gardner's. He received the bids, and, as was proper, awarded the contract to the lowest bidder, who was himself. He sublet a part of the contract, and then had the sewer put in at once.

Now comes the trouble, and nearly every citizen in the town seems to think he has a right to criticise the job. People say that a sewer that is but four inches below the surface of the street will not properly drain cellars that are two feet below the surface, but as these persons never had experience in putting in sewers, they may be mistaken. It is true that the sewer pipe at the corner of West street, where are the houses that require the drain, is but four inches below the level of the street, and it is this that cause the call for a town meeting.

At a meeting of the council, held October 9, President Watson was given the contract for the North road and Southwest avenue sewer, his bid being $2,675, and Councilman Gardner was appointed overseer of the same on behalf of the town. Now the tax payers, without giving Councilman Gardner an opportunity to explain how the Howland avenue sewer will properly drain the cellars at West street, which are about two feet deeper, show a disposition to supersede Councilman Gardner as overseer in President Watson's sewer by putting it in the hands of a civil engineer. And that is what all the fuss is about. It is thought by Councilman Gardner's friends that he should have an opportunity to explain his methods of sewer construction, and how he expects to make his system work satisfactorily, before he is displaced from overseeing President Watson's job.

Sewers and how to put them in is the talk of the town.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. Andrew J. Tabb is seriously ill at his residence on Edgar court.

—Rev. Mr. Olsen will preach in Swedish at Grace Chapel Tuesday evening.

—Miss Frances Minturn Hall of New York is at Mrs. Charles Potter's, Sunnyside place.

—Captain Major of Boston will speak at the meeting of the Volunteers of America at their hall on Duke street this evening at 8 o'clock.

—Mrs. Franklin McVeagh of Chicago, Mrs. William Fuller and Mrs. M. Knight of Providence, and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Ackerman of New York are at Kinzler's.

—A shipping paper, for the benefit of mariners, published in Bristol, England, has just reached the local custom house. Newport's population is given as 11,60[illegible].

—About fifteen members of Newport Council, Knights of Columbus, attended the meeting of the order in Pawtucket yesterday. William J. McDermott, grand knight of Newport Council, was one of the aids on the chief marshal's staff.

—Wednesday next is the date of the special excursion from Newport and stations to Tiverton, to Boston and the Boston Food Fair, for which round-trip tickets, with coupon for admission to the fair, will be sold at a low rate. The special train leaves Newport at 9:15 a. m. and returning leaves Boston at 7:05 p. m.

—Grand Warden Charles E. Weeks of the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island, New England Order of Protection, has announced the dates of his official visitations to the subordinate lodges of the state. The first will be made this evening, to Mariners Lodge of Tiverton, and Malbone Lodge of this city will be visited Wednesday, December 1.

—The committee on street lights has had the gas lamp at the corner of Bevan and Mary streets replaced. The protest from the inhabitants of that section was too strong to be opposed, especially in view of the near approach of election day. More of the lamp posts recently ordered out need to be replaced, as the electric lights cannot well shine around corners, though they are doing good work on Spring street.

GIFT OF THE CITY.

navy yard, and at three different times at the Naval Academy. He came to the Naval War College from the Naval Academy last June as a member of the class, and at the close of the summer session was retained as a member of the college staff. Commander Tilley was born in Bristol and is related to the Newport families of that name, and his selection as the first commander of the Newport is especially appropriate and pleasing.

Commander Tilley's Speech.

In accepting the service Commander Tilley spoke as follows:

Your Honor, Citizens of Newport and Gentlemen:

There is a saying that speech is silver, but silence is golden. I have always been in sympathy with the gold party on this question; but on this occasion there is no help for me and I must come out and speak for silver.

But it is a pleasant duty that I have to perform in accepting for this ship, which bears the honored name of Newport, this beautiful tribute of your regard for the navy. This is not a mere formal matter between us. All who serve in this ship now, and all who shall come hereafter, will be reminded on seeing these pieces of silver that the people of Newport are with us in spirit, and that we belong to a navy of the people. We all need encouragement, and I assure you that whatever service the Newport may be called upon to perform, it will be better done because of this graceful act of yours.

It is no wonder that Newport takes pride in our navy. She has had—and has now—among her citizens some of the most illustrious American naval officers. Oliver Hazard Perry, winning the battle of Lake Erie at the age of twenty-seven, showed not only the courage of the hero, but only the address and gallantry of the accomplished captain, but the commanding skill of the flag officer, victorious in a fleet engagement. Even the critics of the War College have been unable to find any flaw in his strategy or his tactics, and to crown all, his magnificent personal gallantry in the face of the enemy has thrown around him all the glamour of a hero of romance.

As we learn more of the people of Japan through their wonderful recent development, both in the arts of peace and of war, we see that as a nation they are intelligent, vigorous and warlike to the highest degree. To deal successfully with such a people, to compel them through diplomacy, backed by a navy, to open their ports to the world, was the task so ably performed by your former citizen, Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry—and his success was due largely to his splendid personal attributes and force of character.

Truly Newport has cause for pride in our navy, and these great men who have come forth from your midst have set for the naval officers of today an example of courage, of patriotism and of magnificent achievement which cannot be surpassed; and the officers and men of this ship, which bears the proud name of Newport, as she sails forth, carrying our flag to the far ends of the earth, will remember these records of peace and of war, and will endeavor to be worthy of the name with which the fair daughter of Newport, who is present with us, has christened her.

In conclusion, citizens of Newport, I render to you the thanks of all on board this ship, and of the entire navy, for this token of your regard and esteem.

GOOD VIEWS, BUT POOR SIDEWALKS

To the Editor of the News:

The new road over the Bull lands, a little beyond the Mile Corner, gives beautiful views that are new to many and worth seeing by all. In going thither pedestrians would do well to use the roadbed for at least a small portion of the way, where the sidewalk and the roadbed seem to have become mixed up, the roadbed being excellent for walking while the sidewalk seems to have been covered with crushed stone preparatory to a visit from the steam roller—which never came. Perhaps the roller couldn't be operated to advantage under the low-hanging trees of that section, inasmuch as persons have to bend to use the walk beneath them. Why do not the city men remove these stumps and trim those trees? Then human beings would have something a little nearer the standard of what is provided for the horses.

Speaking of sidewalks, there is a very treacherous section of old boarding on Summer street, near Broadway while beyond these boards is a section of perfectly safe dusty sand, enough to spoil the appearance of any neat pair of boots or shoes.

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING DINNER.

The first Thanksgiving dinner was celebrated in this country two hundred and seventy-six years ago, at Plymouth, Mass. The whole American army was present—it numbered twenty men. Miles Standish, the backward lover of Priscilla, served at the tables, and story will appear in the November issue of the Ladies' Home Journal. Here Indians and whites sat down together by the tables set in the woods, and enjoyed the repast—venison, turkeys, clam chowder, fish, salad, corn, fruits and wild delicacies provided for the occasion. The illustrations of the article show portraits of the Pilgrim fathers.

In a new patented case and umbrella the sticks are made hollow, to contain the frame covers made over of the materials, which are of such shape that they can be closed into a very small space.

D. 1892 and recorded in Volume II of the Land Evidence of the town of Jamestown in the state of Rhode Island at pages 192, 193 and 194, will be sold at public auction upon the premises hereinafter described on Saturday the twenty-third day of October A. D. 1897 at one o'clock in the afternoon that certain lot or parcel of land situate in that part of the said town of Jamestown, known as Conanicut Park and bounded northerly on Bay View Place, easterly on Summit avenue, southerly on Highland avenue and westerly on Bay View Place and a line in continuance of the westerly boundary line of said Bay View Place to said Highland avenue as said land and ways are shown on a plan of said Conanicut Park, made by John H. Mallet and on file in the office of the town clerk of said Jamestown, together with the dwelling-house and other buildings and improvements on said lot. Also one other certain lot or strip of land, situate in said Jamestown, in said Conanicut Park bounded northwesterly by Narragansett Bay, easterly by land of the said estate government, southeasterly by Bay View Drive aforesaid and southerly by a line formed by prolonging said easterly (or northerly as it may be called) boundary line of said Bay View Place northwestwardly to said Narragansett Bay, together with the wharf and other improvements thereon, subject to the restrictions set forth in the deed to said George A. Eastman from Holmes M. Jennison and wife.

Said mortgagee hereby gives notice of his intention to bid upon said property at said sale thereof.

By order of the mortgagee,

DARIUS BASKER, Attorney.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 28, 1897.
